CompTIA Data+ Exam (2025) Sample Questions (Q17-Q22):

NEW QUESTION # 17
A company wants to limit an employee's access to a production environment. Which of the following access control practices is the best to implement?

- A. Time-based
- B. Mandatory
- C. Role-based
- D. Attribute-based

Answer: C

Explanation:
This question falls under the Data Governance domain, focusing on access control practices for data security. The task is to limit an employee's access to a production environment, requiring a structured approach.
* Mandatory (Option A): Mandatory access control (MAC) uses strict, system-enforced rules (e.g., military settings), but it's overly rigid for most companies.
* Time-based (Option B): Time-based access limits access to specific times, which doesn't address general production environment access.
* Attribute-based (Option C): Attribute-based access control (ABAC) uses attributes (e.g., department, location), but it's complex and not the simplest solution.
* Role-based (Option D): Role-based access control (RBAC) assigns permissions based on the employee's role, ensuring they only access what's needed for their job, making it the best practice for limiting production access.
The DA0-002 Data Governance domain includes "data privacy concepts," and role-based access control is a widely adopted practice for limiting access in production environments.

NEW QUESTION # 18
A data analyst calculated the average score per student without making any changes to the following table:
Student
Subject
Score
123
Math
100
123
Biology
80
234
Math
96
123
Biology
80
345
Biology
88
234
Math
96
Which of the following exploration techniques should the analyst have considered before calculating the average?

- A. Grouping
- B. Redundancy
- C. Binning
- D. Duplication

Answer: D

Explanation:
This question pertains to theData Governancedomain, focusing on data quality issues that affect analysis.
The table contains duplicate rows, which would skew the average score calculation if not addressed.
* Student 123: Math (100), Biology (80), Biology (80)- Duplicate Biology score.
* Student 234: Math (96), Math (96)- Duplicate Math score.
* Student 345: Biology (88)- No duplicates.
* Duplication (Option A): The table has duplicate rows (e.g., Student 123's Biology score of 80 appears twice), which would inflate the average if not removed. The analyst should have checked for duplicates before calculating the average.
* Redundancy (Option B): Redundancy refers to unnecessary fields (e.g., storing the same data in multiple columns), not duplicate rows.
* Binning (Option C): Binning groups data into categories, not relevant for addressing duplicates in averaging.
* Grouping (Option D): Grouping (e.g., GROUP BY in SQL) might be part of the solution,but the issue to identify is duplication.
The DA0-002 Data Governance domain includes "data quality control concepts," and checking for duplication is critical to ensure accurate calculations like averages.

NEW QUESTION # 19

A manager requests a report that returns results based on a user's profile. Which of the following best describes this type of report?

- A. Real-time
- B. Dynamic
- C. Snapshot
- D. Static

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 20

A data analyst receives a notification that a customized report is taking too long to load. After reviewing the system, the analyst does not find technical or operational issues. Which of the following should the analyst try next?

- A. Check for data structure changes in the report.
- B. Check data source connections.
- C. Check whether other peers have the same issue.
- D. Check that the appropriate filters are applied.

Answer: D

Explanation:
This question pertains to theData Governancedomain, focusing on data quality and report performance optimization. The report is slow despite no technical issues, suggesting a data-related inefficiency.
* Check that the appropriate filters are applied (Option A): Applying filters reduces the dataset size by excluding irrelevant data, improving report performance. This is a logical next step after ruling out technical issues.
* Check data source connections (Option B): The analyst already reviewed the system and found no operational issues, so connectivity is likely not the problem.
* Check for data structure changes in the report (Option C): While possible, this is a deeper investigation step and less likely to be the immediate cause of slowness.
* Check whether other peers have the same issue (Option D): This might confirm the issue's scope but doesn't directly address the performance problem.
The DA0-002 Data Governance domain emphasizes "data quality control concepts," including optimizing report performance through techniques like filtering.

NEW QUESTION # 21

Which of the following best describes an assessment a data analyst would use to validate that the number of records in a dataset matches the expected results?

- A. Health check
- B. Stress test
- C. Source control
- D. Unit test

Answer: D

Explanation:
This question pertains to theData Governancedomain, focusing on data quality validation techniques. The task is to validate that the number of records matches expectations, which requires a specific type of assessment.
* Source control (Option A): Source control (e.g., Git) manages code versions, not dataset validation.
* Unit test (Option B): A unit test checks a specific component of a process, such as verifying that the number of records in a dataset matches the expected count, making it the best fit.
* Stress test (Option C): Stress tests evaluate system performance under load, not record counts.
* Health check (Option D): A health check monitors system status but isn't specific to validating record counts.
The DA0-002 Data Governance domain includes "data quality control concepts," and unit tests are a standard method for validating specific data outcomes like record counts.
