CompTIA Data+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q357-Q362):

NEW QUESTION # 357

A data analyst needs to observe the relationship between two numeric variables and identify the clustering pattern as well as the outliers. Which of the following visualizations should the analyst use?

- A. Tree map
- B. Stacked chart
- C. Heat map
- D. Scatter plot

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth

When analyzing relationships between two numeric variables, the best visualization is a scatter plot, as it helps to:

Identify correlations (positive, negative, or no correlation).

Detect clustering patterns in data points.

Spot outliers that deviate significantly from the general trend.

Option A (Heat map): Incorrect. Heat maps are used for visualizing intensity differences across categories, not for identifying patterns between two numeric variables.

Option B (Tree map): Incorrect. Tree maps visualize hierarchical relationships, not scatter patterns.

Option C (Scatter plot): Correct. Scatter plots are best suited for examining relationships and identifying clustering patterns and outliers.

Option D (Stacked chart): Incorrect. Stacked charts are used to display the composition of multiple data series, not relationships between two numeric variables.

NEW QUESTION # 358

An analyst for a small business with multiple locations is using each location's quarterly sales reports from last year to create a single revenue report for the year. Which of the following data mining techniques should the analyst use to complete this task?

- A. Data merge
- B. Data append
- C. Data blending
- D. Data imputation

Answer: A

Explanation:

To compile a comprehensive annual revenue report from multiple quarterly sales reports, the analyst should integrate the datasets appropriately:

* Data Merge: This technique involves combining datasets based on common fields or keys. In this scenario, merging would align data from different quarters based on shared attributes, such as location identifiers, to create a unified dataset.

* Data Append: Appending adds datasets sequentially, stacking them on top of each other. While this could combine the reports, it doesn't ensure integration based on common fields, which is necessary for accurate analysis.

* Data Blending: Blending combines data from different sources or formats. If the quarterly reports are in varied formats or from different systems, blending would be appropriate. However, if they share the same structure, blending isn't necessary.

* Data Imputation: Imputation addresses missing or incomplete data by filling in gaps. This technique isn't relevant to combining complete quarterly reports.

Therefore, merging the data ensures that all quarterly reports are integrated based on common fields, providing a cohesive annual revenue report.

NEW QUESTION # 359

An analyst needs to provide a chart to identify the composition between the categories of the survey response data set:

Which of the following charts would be BEST to use?

- A. Line
- B. Histogram
- C. Waterfall
- D. Pie
- E. Scatter plot

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

A pie chart is the best choice to show the composition between the categories of the survey response data set.

A pie chart represents the whole with a circle, divided by slices into parts. Each slice shows the relative size of each category as a percentage of the total. A pie chart is useful when the categories are mutually exclusive and add up to 100%. The table shows the favorite color and the number of responses for each color, which can be easily converted into percentages. A pie chart can show how each color contributes to the total number of responses.

Option A is incorrect because a histogram is used to show how data points are distributed along a numerical scale. The survey response data set is not numerical, but categorical.

Option C is incorrect because a line chart is used to show trends or changes over time. The survey response data set does not have a time dimension.

Option D is incorrect because a scatter plot is used to show the relationship between two numerical variables.

The survey response data set does not have two numerical variables.

Option E is incorrect because a waterfall chart is used to show how an initial value is increased or decreased by a series of intermediate values. The survey response data set does not have an initial value or intermediate values.
