Reading Comprehension

Passage:

Sleep deprivation can impair immune function, making individuals more susceptible to illness. Over time, chronic lack of sleep may increase the risk of serious health conditions.

Which statement is best supported by the passage?

- A. Adequate sleep supports immune health
- B. Illness always results from lack of sleep
- C. Immune function improves with stress
- D. Sleep has no effect on immunity

Answer: A

Explanation:

The passage states that lack of sleep weakens immune function and increases susceptibility to illness. This supports the conclusion that adequate sleep supports immune health. Option C accurately reflects this relationship. Options A and D contradict the passage, while option B exaggerates the effect. NEX questions often test the ability to infer logical conclusions without overgeneralizing.

NEW QUESTION # 35

Which of the following is the correct classification of a penny made only of copper?

- A. A pure substance that is an element
- B. A pure substance that is a compound
- C. A homogeneous mixture of two elements
- D. A heterogeneous mixture of two compounds

Answer: A

Explanation:

Copper is a chemical element, meaning it consists of only one type of atom. If a penny were made entirely of copper, it would be classified as a pure substance and specifically as an element. Compounds consist of two or more different elements chemically bonded together. Mixtures contain substances physically combined, not chemically bonded. Since the penny is composed of only copper atoms, it does not qualify as a mixture or a compound. The NEX Science exam frequently includes questions on classification of matter, requiring students to distinguish between elements, compounds, and mixtures. Therefore, option D is correct.

It explains that early detection allows for more effective treatment and better long-term outcomes. Option B captures this key idea. Options A and D contradict the passage, and option C introduces a concept not discussed. Summary questions on the NEX test whether the reader can condense the passage into its most essential message.

NEW QUESTION # 37

An employee receives notification that their job is being eliminated. Upon hearing the news, the employee bangs a fist on the worktable and shouts loud curses and insults about management.

This reaction corresponds to which stage of the stress response pathway?

- A. Exhaustion
- B. Failure
- C. Resistance
- D. Alarm

Answer: D

Explanation:

The alarm stage is the initial reaction to a stressor and is characterized by emotional outbursts, increased heart rate, and release of stress hormones such as adrenaline. The employee's immediate anger and physical reaction reflect this stage. The resistance stage involves adaptation, and exhaustion occurs after prolonged stress. "Failure" is not a recognized stage of the stress response. The NEX Science exam frequently tests physiological and psychological responses to stress, making alarm the correct answer.
