What theory emphasizes the role of social interaction in learning and posits that knowledge is co-constructed through collaborative dialogue among individuals?

- A. constructivism
- B. behaviorism
- C. phenomenological

Answer: A

Explanation:

Constructivism is a theory of learning that emphasizes the active role of learners in constructing their own understanding through social interaction and dialogue. Knowledge is seen as co-constructed, particularly in the social constructivist tradition influenced by theorists like Vygotsky. "Constructivism posits that knowledge is created collaboratively and contextually through meaningful social interaction." Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review; Gladding, S. T. (2018). Counseling: A Comprehensive Profession (8th Edition).

NEW QUESTION # 146

What is an example of advocating on behalf of the counseling profession?

- A. attending a state-level professional counseling conference
- B. practicing cultural competence when meeting with clients
- C. providing pro bono counseling services at a small organization

Answer: A

Explanation:

Attending a state-level professional counseling conference is an example of professional advocacy. Such participation allows counselors to stay informed about legislation, professional issues, and advancements in the field, and to contribute to the development of the profession. Professional advocacy also includes lobbying for the profession, involvement in professional organizations, and participating in policy-making that affects counselors and clients.

NEW QUESTION # 147

A client states, "What's bothering me is that I might have a problem with drinking. I don't think I am an alcoholic or anything, but I have missed a lot of work due to hangovers." The counselor responds, "We have some videos on alcohol abuse that would be good for you to take a look at." In this illustration, the counselor has made an empathy error known as

- A. advice-giving.
- B. discordance.
- C. improper interpretation.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In this scenario, the counselor's response skips over the client's feelings and self-reflection, immediately offering advice and resources. This is an example of the advice-giving empathy error, where the counselor provides a solution instead of first demonstrating understanding or empathy. Effective counseling requires exploring the client's emotions and ambivalence before offering suggestions.

An advantage of calculating a Kuder-Richardson reliability coefficient for a test is that it

- A. is a variance-free estimate of reliability.
- B. is accurate irrespective of test length.

- C. can be based on only one administration of the test.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A major advantage of the Kuder-Richardson reliability coefficient (such as KR-20) is that it requires only a single test administration, since it is based on internal consistency of test items. This makes it more practical than methods that require multiple administrations.
