NEW QUESTION # 743

A nurse is performing a vaginal exam on a client in active labor. An important landmark to assess during labor and delivery are the ischial spines because:

- A. They measure pelvic floor
- B. They represent the inlet of birth canal
- C. Ischial spines are the narrowest diameter of the pelvis
- D. Ischial spines are the widest diameter of the pelvis

Answer: C

Explanation:

Section: Questions Set C

Explanation:

(A) The fetal descent, or station, is determined by the relationship of the presenting part to the spine. (B) Ischial spines are the narrowest measurement. (C) Ischial spines measure the pelvic outlet. (D) Pelvic floor measurement is not related to fetal descent.

NEW QUESTION # 744

Seven days ago, a 45-year-old female client had an ileostomy. She is self-sufficient and well otherwise. Which of the following long-term objectives would be unrealistic?

- A. She should be able to return to a regular diet.
- B. She should be able to manage her own care.
- C. She should be able to control evacuation of her bowels.
- D. She should be able to resume sexual activity.

Answer: C

Explanation:

(A) Because of the location of an ileostomy, the client will not be able to control the evacuation of her bowels. The ileostomy will drain liquid stool continuously. (B) The client should be able to return to a normal, well-balanced diet. She should avoid foods that cause diarrhea or excessive gas production, and she should eat small meals. (C) The client should be able to resume sexual activity. She will be able to wear a pouch. (D) The client has no other health or mental problems and should be able to manage her own ileostomy.

NEW QUESTION # 745

A 19-year-old male client arrived via ambulance to the emergency room following a motorcycle accident. He is comatose. His face has evidence of dried blood. On assessment, the nurse notes an obvious injury to his left eye. The preferred positioning for a client with an obvious eye injury is:

- A. Side-lying, either left or right
- B. Reclining to control bleeding
- C. Any position in which the client is comfortable
- D. Sitting with head support

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

(A) A reclining position can cause a penetrating object to advance further into the eye. (B) Prevention of further injury is the priority, not comfort. (C) A side-lying position may increase intraocular and intracranial pressure if an accompanying head injury is suspected. (D) A sitting position with the head supported will prevent further injury while allowing injury care to take place.

NEW QUESTION # 746

Which behavior by a female client feeding her newborn demonstrates that she needs more teaching related to safety and infant feeding?

- A. She burps her baby by placing her in a sitting position, supporting her head and neck and gently massaging her back.

- B. She places her infant on her right side after feeding her.
- C. She uses the bulb syringe to help clear her baby's nose when milk is regurgitated.
- D. She props the bottle in the crib to feed her baby, which allows her to write birth announcements and feed her baby at the same time.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

(A) This practice is the proper use of the bulb syringe to clear the infant's airway in case of regurgitation. (B) Placing the infant on either side or on the stomach prevents aspiration of regurgitated milk. (C) "Bottle propping" is an unsafe practice because it increases the likelihood of aspiration. (D) This practice is one correct way of burping an infant.

NEW QUESTION # 747

A 30-year-old female client is receiving antineoplastic chemotherapy. Which of the following symptoms should especially concern the nurse when caring for her?

- A. Respiratory rate of 16 breaths/min
- B. Pulse rate of 80 bpm
- C. Complaints of muscle aches
- D. A sore throat

Answer: D

Explanation:

Section: Questions Set E

Explanation:

(A) A respiratory rate of 16 breaths/min is normal and is not a cause for alarm. (B) A pulse rate of 80 bpm is normal and is not a cause for alarm. (C) Complaints of muscle aches are unrelated to her receiving chemotherapy. There may be other causes related to her hospital stay or the disease process. (D) A sore throat is an indication of a possible infection. A client receiving chemotherapy is at risk of neutropenia. An infection in the presence of neutropenia can result in a life-threatening situation.
