- B. The numbers and types of cyberattacks experienced by the organization since the last assembly of the membership
- C. Significant risks and security incidents that have been discovered since the last assembly of the membership
- D. The capabilities of a security program in terms of staffing support

Answer: C

Explanation:

* Board-Level Reporting Priorities:

* The board requires a high-level overview of significant risks, incidents, and their potential business impacts.

* The focus is on decision-making information rather than technical details.

* Rationale:

* Helps the board assess the organization's risk posture and strategic adjustments needed to mitigate risks.

* Encourages accountability and alignment with business goals.

- B. The NPV of the project is negative
- C. The Return on Investment (ROI) is larger than 10 months
- D. The ROI is lower than 10 months

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Net Present Value (NPV) represents the difference between the present value of cash inflows and outflows over a period. A negative NPV indicates that the project would result in a net loss, making it a primary reason for rejection by the executive board.

* Understanding NPV:

* Positive NPV: Project adds value and is likely to be accepted.

* Negative NPV: Project results in a financial loss and is typically rejected.

* Role of Financial Metrics:

* NPV is a critical decision-making metric in evaluating the viability of security projects.

* While ROI provides insights into the return over time, NPV directly addresses financial feasibility.

* Probable Cause for Rejection:

* A project with a negative NPV demonstrates that the cost outweighs the benefits, leading to likely rejection.

* Financial Evaluation in Security Projects: Emphasizes the role of financial metrics like NPV and ROI in board-level decisions.

* Cost-Benefit Analysis Framework: Negative financial outcomes undermine the approval of security investments.
