NEW QUESTION # 63

A company's legal and accounting teams have decided it would be more cost-effective to offload the risks of data storage to a third party. The IT management team has decided to implement a cloud model and has asked the security team for recommendations.

Which of the following will allow all data to be kept on the third-party network?

- A. FaaS
- B. SaaS
- C. CASB
- D. VDI

Answer: B

Explanation:

SaaS stands for Software as a Service, which is a cloud model that allows users to access software applications over the internet without installing or maintaining them on their own devices. SaaS will allow all data to be kept on the third-party network, because the software applications and the data they generate or process are stored on the cloud provider's servers. VDI, CASB, and FaaS are other terms related to cloud computing or security, but they do not match the description of keeping all data on the third-party network. An analyst sees the following output from a packet capture:

Which of the following phrases from the output provides information on how the testing team is successfully getting around the ICMP firewall rule?

- A. ttl=64 indicates the testing team is setting the time to live below the firewall's threshold
- B. NO FLAGS are set indicates the testing team is using hping
- C. flags=RA indicates the testing team is using a Christmas tree attack
- D. 0 data bytes indicates the testing team is crafting empty ICMP packets

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 65

An organization has recently found some of its sensitive information posted to a social media site.

An investigation has identified large volumes of data leaving the network with the source traced back to host 192.168.1.13. An analyst performed a targeted Nmap scan of this host with the results shown below:

Subsequent investigation has allowed the organization to conclude that all of the well-known, standard ports are secure. Which of the following services is the problem?
