Splunk Core Certified Power User Exam Sample Questions (Q66-Q71):

NEW QUESTION # 66

Two separate results tables are being combined using the join command. The outer table has the following values:

email	employeeNumber
jsmith@acme.com	1
mcarpenter@acme.com	2
jrogers@acme.com	3
bsparrow@acme.com	4
eripper@acme.com	5

The inner table has the following values:

employeeNumber	firstName	lastName
1	John	Smith
2	Mary	Carpenter
3	Jeff	Rogers

The line of SPL used to join the tables is: `join employeeNumber type=outer` How many rows are returned in the new table?

- A. Five
- B. Three
- C. Eight
- D. Zero

Answer: A

Explanation:

In this case, the outer join is applied, which means that all rows from the outer (left) table will be included, even if there are no matching rows in the inner (right) table. The result will include all five rows from the outer table, with the matched data from the inner table where employeeNumber matches. Rows without matching employeeNumber values will have null values for the fields from the inner table.

NEW QUESTION # 67

Which method in the Field Extractor would extract the port number from the following event? |

10/20/2022 - 125.24.20.1 ++++ port 54 - user: admin <web error>

- A. rex command
- B. The Field Extractor tool cannot extract regular expressions.
- C. Delimiter
- D. Regular expression

Answer: A

Explanation:

The rex command allows you to extract fields from events using regular expressions. You can use the rex command to specify a named group that matches the port number in the event. For example:

```
rex "\+\+\+\+port (?<port>\d+)"

This will create a field called port with the value 54 for the event.

The delimiter method is not suitable for this event because there is no consistent delimiter between the fields. The regular expression method is not a valid option for the Field Extractor tool. The Field Extractor tool can extract regular expressions, but it is not a method by itself.

NEW QUESTION # 68

Selected fields are displayed _____ each event in the search results.

- A. interesting fields
- B. below

- C. other fields
- D. above

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 69

The timechart command is an example of which of the following command types?

- A. Generating
- B. Transforming
- C. Orchestrating
- D. Statistical

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is B. Transforming.

The explanation is as follows:

The timechart command is a Splunk command that creates a time series chart with corresponding table of statistics¹².

A timechart is a statistical aggregation applied to a field to produce a chart, with time used as the X-axis¹.

You can specify a split-by field, where each distinct value of the split-by field becomes a series in the chart¹.

Transforming commands are commands that change the format of the search results into a data structure that can be easily visualized³. Transforming commands often use stats functions to aggregate and summarize data³.

Therefore, the timechart command is an example of a transforming command, as it transforms the search results into a chart and a table using stats functions¹²³.

NEW QUESTION # 70

Which of the following statements is true about the root dataset of a data model?

- A. It can contain transforming commands as long as it is a root search dataset.
- B. It will automatically contain knowledge objects associated with the base search.
- C. It must contain the transaction command if it is a root transaction dataset.
- D. It can only contain a base search with no transforming commands.

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Splunk, a data model's root dataset is the foundational element upon which the rest of the data model is built. The root dataset can be of various types, including search, transaction, or event-based datasets. One of the key features of the root dataset is that it automatically inherits the knowledge objects associated with its base search. These knowledge objects include field extractions, lookups, aliases, and calculated fields that are defined for the base search, ensuring that the root dataset has all necessary contextual information from the outset. This allows users to build upon this dataset with additional child datasets and objects without having to redefine the base search's knowledge objects.
