- A. The organization's risk tolerance is low
- B. The risk tolerance within the organization is high
- C. The organization's risk management program is mature
- D. The organization primarily uses qualitative risk measurement

Answer: B

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation (250-350 words)
According to EC-Council CCISO documentation, risk acceptance is most likely when an organization has a high risk tolerance. Risk tolerance reflects how much uncertainty or potential loss leadership is willing to accept in pursuit of business objectives.
CCISO materials explain that organizations with high risk tolerance may accept risks when mitigation costs exceed potential impact or when risk aligns with strategic goals. Low risk tolerance (Option B) leads to mitigation or avoidance. Qualitative risk measurement (Option C) does not determine treatment decisions. A mature risk program (Option D) improves decision quality but does not inherently favor acceptance.
Therefore, Option A is correct.

Why This is Correct:
* Annual reviews provide a balance between thoroughness and practicality, ensuring policies stay effective without overburdening resources.
Why Other Options Are Incorrect:

* Baseline the Environment:
* After defining the policy, the current IT environment is assessed to identify existing vulnerabilities and benchmark security posture.
* Maintain and Monitor:
* Regular updates and monitoring are implemented to ensure the program remains effective over time.
* Organizational Vulnerability Awareness:
