- A. Direct property loss
- B. Indirect property loss
- C. Liability loss
- D. Tenant loss

Answer: B

Explanation:

Indirect property loss refers to financial losses resulting from an inability to use a property after a direct loss event (e.g., hurricane damage). In this case, the loss of income due to temporary closure represents an indirect loss, as the property itself may not be completely destroyed but its function is disrupted.

NEW QUESTION # 65

A building owner and general contractor sign a contract to build an addition to a retail shopping center. Both parties agree to include a provision that specifies an amount of money to be paid by one party that is in material breach to the other party. This provision is often used when the sum of damages is difficult to predict in advance of contract execution. What is this provision called?

- A. Consequential damages
- B. Restitution
- C. Expectation damages
- D. Liquidated damages

Answer: D

Explanation:

Liquidated damages are pre-determined amounts specified in a contract to be paid as compensation if one party breaches the agreement. They are commonly used when actual damages would be hard to quantify in advance, making them a proactive risk management tool in construction and service contracts.

NEW QUESTION # 66

Which of the following is LEAST likely to be collected by a property manager?

- A. Operating expense increases

Answer: B

Property managers typically collect monthly rent, operating expense increases, and percentage rent as part of lease agreements. However, property tax on tenant fixtures is usually the responsibility of the tenant and handled directly with the taxing authority, making it the least likely to be collected by the property manager.
