Salesforce B2B Commerce for Developers Accredited Professional Sample Questions (Q87-Q92):

NEW QUESTION # 87

What happens to all previous tax entries during tax implementation?

- A. They are deleted from the Cart
- B. Ignored with the recalculation
- C. Modified with the new Tax calculation
- D. Saved prior to recalculation

Answer: D

Explanation:

In general best practices for tax implementation in systems like Salesforce B2B Commerce, previous tax entries are usually preserved or saved before any recalculation is performed. This ensures that there is a record of the original tax calculations before any modifications, which can be crucial for auditing, historical data integrity, and in case the new tax calculation needs to be rolled back for any reason.

NEW QUESTION # 88

A developer is creating a component to implement a custom Terms and Conditions checkbox at checkout in the Aura Commerce template.

Which method should the developer implement on the Lightning web component to ensure the user accepts the terms and conditions?

- A. Validate
- B. SaveCheckout
- C. CheckValidity
- D. ComponentValidity

Answer: A

Explanation:

To implement a custom Terms and Conditions checkbox at checkout in the Aura Commerce template, a developer should add a Desired Delivery Date input field during the checkout flow. The Desired Delivery Date input field allows the customer to enter a date when they want their order to be delivered. The developer can use the `@api` decorator to expose this field as a public property of the Lightning web component and bind it to the `ccCheckoutOrder` object. The developer can also use the `@wire` decorator to get the current cart object and use its properties, such as shipping address and shipping method, to calculate and display an estimated delivery date based on the desired delivery date. The developer can also add validation logic to ensure that the desired delivery date is valid and acceptable. Adding the Expected Delivery Date field to the order confirmation email is not a good solution, as it does not allow the customer to choose or see their delivery date before placing their order. Displaying the Expected Delivery Date on the order page with a Lightning web component is not a good solution either, as it does not allow the customer to enter or change their delivery date after placing their order. Configuring an email alert to the customer when the Expected Delivery Date changes is not a good solution either, as it does not provide a consistent or reliable way of informing the customer about their delivery date. NEW QUESTION # 89

Which two guidelines should a developer consider when migrating aura components to LWC?

- A. Start with simple components that only render UI
- B. Migrate one component and then determine whether additional effort would make sense
- C. Force all developers to write any new components using Lightning web components
- D. Start with migrating trees of components (components within components)

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

When migrating aura components to LWC, a developer should consider two guidelines: migrate one component and then determine whether additional effort would make sense and start with simple components that only render UI. Migrating one component and then determining whether additional effort would make sense allows the developer to evaluate the benefits and costs of migration and decide whether to continue or stop. Migrating simple components that only render UI allows the developer to leverage the performance and modern features of LWC without much complexity or dependency on other components or services. Starting with migrating trees of components (components within components) is not a good guideline, as it can introduce more challenges and dependencies that can complicate the migration process. Forcing all developers to write any new components using Lightning web components is not a good guideline either, as it can create inconsistency and confusion among developers and users. NEW QUESTION # 90

What is the fastest route to setting up a B2B Commerce Store as a developer?

- A. Import a previously exported store archive

- B. Use sfdx setup scripts
- C. Set up B2B Commerce on Lightning Experience manually
- D. Create a new store in the Commerce app

Answer: A

Explanation:

The fastest route to setting up a B2B Commerce store as a developer is to use sfdx setup scripts. Sfdx setup scripts are scripts that use Salesforce CLI commands to automate the creation and configuration of a B2B Commerce store. The scripts can perform tasks such as creating scratch orgs, installing packages, importing data, assigning permissions, and deploying code. The scripts can save time and effort for developers who need to set up a B2B Commerce store quickly and easily. Setting up B2B Commerce on Lightning Experience manually is not the fastest route to setting up a B2B Commerce store, as it involves many steps and actions that can be tedious and error-prone. Creating a new store in the Commerce app is not the fastest route either, as it also requires manual configuration and customization of various settings and features. Importing a previously exported store archive is not the fastest route either, as it depends on the availability and quality of the store archive and may not reflect the latest changes or updates. NEW QUESTION # 91

Which cookie stores the effective account ID when effective account is enabled?

- A. apex__effacc
- B. apex__cclogtkn
- C. apex__currCartId
- D. apex__cc_anonymous_Country

Answer: A

Explanation:

The cookie that stores the effective account ID when effective account is enabled is apex__effacc. This cookie is set by the cc__hk_EffectiveAccount hook when a user switches to another account that they have access to. The cookie value is the ID of the effective account, which is used to determine the pricing, availability, and visibility of products and categories for that account.
