NEW QUESTION # 92
What is the Endpoint when configuring a REST Message?

- A. The provider response indicates there is no data to send back
- B. The command to the REST script to stop execution
- C. The URI of the Webserver
- D. The URI of the data to be accessed, queried, or modified

Answer: D

Explanation:
In ServiceNow, when configuring a REST Message, the Endpoint specifies the URI (Uniform Resource Identifier) where the REST request is sent. This URI points to the resource on the external system that the REST message will interact with, whether it's to retrieve, update, create, or delete data.
Key Points:
* Endpoint Definition: The Endpoint is a complete URL that includes the protocol (e.g., HTTP or HTTPS), the domain or IP address of the external server, and the specific path to the resource. For example: https://api.example.com/v1/resources.
* Dynamic Endpoints: ServiceNow allows the use of variables within the Endpoint URL, enabling dynamic substitution at runtime. This is useful when the exact resource path or parameters need to be determined during execution.
* Configuration in ServiceNow:
* Navigate to "System Web Services" > "Outbound" > "REST Message."
* Create a new REST Message or select an existing one.
* In the REST Message record, define the Endpoint URL in the "Endpoint" field.
Example Scenario:
If you are integrating ServiceNow with an external ticketing system to retrieve incident data, the Endpoint might be something like https://api.ticketingsystem.com/incidents/{incident_id}, where {incident_id} is a placeholder that gets replaced with the actual incident ID at runtime.
Reference: For more detailed information, please refer to the official ServiceNow documentation on Outbound REST Messages.
