Cloud Security Alliance Certificate of Cloud Security Knowledge v5 (CCSKv5.0) Sample Questions (Q285-Q290):

NEW QUESTION # 285

CCM: The Cloud Service Delivery Model Applicability column in the CCM indicates the applicability of the cloud security control to which of the following elements?

- A. Service Provider or Tenant/Consumer
- B. SaaS, PaaS or IaaS
- C. Physical, Network, Compute, Storage, Application or Data
- D. Mappings to well-known standards and frameworks

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 286

What's the difference between DNS Logs and Flow Logs?

- A. They represent the logging of different networking solutions, and DNS Logs are more suitable for a ZTA implementation
- B. They play identical functions and can be used interchangeably
- C. DNS Logs record domain name resolution requests and responses, while Flow Logs record info on source, destination, protocol
- D. DNS Logs record all the information about the network behavior, including source, destination, and protocol, while Flow Logs record users' applications behavior

Answer: C

Explanation:

DNS logs capture information on domain name resolution, while Flow logs capture details about network traffic, including source, destination, and protocol. Reference: [CCSK Study Guide, Domain 7 - Infrastructure & Networking]

NEW QUESTION # 287

Which of the authentication is more secured?

- A. Biometric Authentication
- B. Multifactor Authentication
- C. Password Authentication
- D. Single Sign-on

Answer: B

Explanation:

Multifactor authentication is more secured than the rest because it has more than one aspect to authentication. Multifactor authentication is composed of, at a minimum, two of the following aspects- something you know, something you are, or something you have. Something you know can be a password, passphrase, and so on. Something you have can be something like a number-generating transmit a number or fob, a smartphone capable of receiving text messages, or even a phone that can receive a call and then to the individual but that is only accessible from a very specific phone number.

Something you are is a biometric trait of yourself, as a living creature. This could be as unique and specific as your DNA fingerprint, or as cursorily general as a photograph.

NEW QUESTION # 288

Which of the following processes leverages virtual network topologies to run more smaller and more isolated networks without incurring additional hardware costs?

- A. Converged Networking
- B. VLANs
- C. Micro-segmentation
- D. Grid networking

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation:

This type of question are asked to create confusion.

Following are the five phases of SDLC:

1. Planning and requirements analysis: Business and security requirements and standards are being determined. This phase is the main focus of the project managers and stakeholders. Meetings with managers, stakeholders, and users are held to determine requirements. The software development lifecycle calls for all business requirements(functional and nonfunctional)to be defined even before initial design begins. Planning for the quality-assurance requirements and identification of the risks associated with the project are also conducted in the planning stage. The requirements are then analyzed for their validity and the possibility of incorporating them into the system to be developed.
2. Defining: The defining phase is meant to clearly define and document the product requirements to place them in front of the customers and get them approved. This is done through a requirement specification document, which consists of all the product requirements to be designed and developed during the project lifecycle.
3. Designing: System design helps in specifying hardware and system requirements and helps in defining overall system architecture. The system design specifications serve as input for the next phase of the model. Threat modeling and secure design elements should be undertaken and discussed here.
4. Developing: Upon receiving the system design documents, work is divided into modules or units and actual coding starts. This is typically the longest phase of the software development lifecycle. Activities include code review, unit testing, and static analysis.
5. Testing: After the code is developed, it is tested against the requirements to make sure that the product is actually solving the needs gathered during the requirements phase. During this phase, unit testing, integration testing, system testing, and acceptance testing are conducted.

NEW QUESTION # 289

Why is early integration of pre-deployment testing crucial in a cybersecurity project?

- A. It allows skipping final verification tests.
- B. It increases the overall testing time and costs.
- C. It eliminates the need for continuous integration.
- D. It identifies issues before full deployment, saving time and resources.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Integrating testing early helps identify security vulnerabilities and configuration issues before they reach production, reducing remediation costs and time. Reference: [Security Guidance v5, Domain 10 - Application Security]
