Nutanix Certified Professional - Multicloud Infrastructure (NCP-MCI v6.10) Sample Questions (Q20-Q25):

NEW QUESTION # 20

An administrator wants to live-migrate a vGPU-enabled VM from one host to another within the same cluster.

What requirements must be met before initiating the migration?

- A. The VM must be configured as an agent VM.
- B. The host affinity for the VM must be to a host.
- C. The target host has sufficient resources to support the VM.
- D. The vGPU profile needs to be changed.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Nutanix AHV virtualization guide explains that vGPU-enabled VMs can be live migrated only when the destination host contains compatible GPU hardware and has available vGPU capacity matching the profile assigned to the VM. The documentation states that the VM must have "adequate and equivalent GPU resources on the target host" for migration to proceed. Host affinity is a limiting factor and not a requirement.

Agent VMs are not designed to be migrated. Changing the vGPU profile is not necessary as long as the target host supports the currently assigned profile. Therefore, ensuring the destination host has sufficient compatible resources is the required condition.

NEW QUESTION # 21

Which feature deploys a temporary VM to allow an administrator to log in and apply OS patches to a VM template?

- A. Complete Guest OS Update
- B. Create VM from Template
- C. Update Configuration
- D. Update Guest OS

Answer: A

Explanation:

Nutanix describes a special process for updating golden images or templates without modifying the original source object directly. The documentation states:

"Complete Guest OS Update creates a temporary, cloned instance of the template, boots it, and allows administrators to patch or update the operating system. Once updates are applied, the system recomposes the template with the modifications." This process ensures that templates remain clean and version-controlled while still allowing regular OS patching operations. Other options such as Create VM from Template merely instantiate running VMs and do not update the template source. Update Guest OS and Update Configuration refer to VM-level settings but do not create a temporary working copy for template lifecycle management. Thus, Complete Guest OS Update is the correct feature.

NEW QUESTION # 22

Which two entities can be categorized? (Choose two.)

- A. Alerts
- B. ISO Images
- C. Virtual Machines
- D. Storage Containers

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

In Nutanix Prism Central, categories allow administrators to group and organize entities for management, automation, and policy enforcement.

* Alerts (Option B) can be categorized to group similar system events and create filtering rules.

* Virtual Machines (Option C) can be categorized to apply security policies, automation tasks, and resource allocation rules.

* Option A (Storage Containers) cannot be categorized in Prism Central. Storage policies apply at the container level but are not managed via categories.

* Option D (ISO Images) cannot be categorized because ISOs are static objects, not active entities.

NEW QUESTION # 23

An administrator needs to apply a firmware upgrade to a host and wants to manually migrate VMs before executing an LCM upgrade. All VMs but one are able to be live migrated.

Which action would fix the issue?

- A. Configure backplane port groups that are assigned to CVM.
- B. Enable ADS (Acropolis Dynamic Scheduling) at the cluster level.
- C. Disable Agent VM within VM configuration options.
- D. Update Link Layer Discovery Protocol (LLDP).

Answer: C

Explanation:

Within Nutanix VM classification, Agent VMs are special-purpose system VMs designated for infrastructure tasks. The internal definition states:

"Agent VMs are not live-migratable and do not participate in high-availability evacuation; they are excluded from standard host maintenance operations." If a VM is mistakenly marked as an Agent VM, the hypervisor will block all migration attempts. Disabling the Agent VM flag returns the VM to standard workload treatment, making it eligible for live migration. Updating LLDP has no relevance to VM migration. Backplane port groups affect CVM networking only. ADS influences workload placement but not migration eligibility. Therefore, removing the Agent VM designation is required to allow migration.

NEW QUESTION # 24

An administrator want to create a VM with memory overcommit features enabled in Nutanix environment. Which statement best describes how the administrator will perform this VM creation?

- A. Memory overcommit can only be updated using the Prism Central console.
- B. Memory overcommit can not be enabled for VM from the Prism Central console.
- C. Memory overcommit can be enabled while creating a VM using Prism Element Web Console.
- D. Memory overcommit can only be updated using the Prism Element Web Console once VM created.

Answer: A
