NEW QUESTION # 217

Which of the following form part of the disclosure documents relating to mutual funds?

- A. statement of net assets, annual information form, management reports of fund performance
- B. annual proxy voting record, audited financial statements, and proof of registration
- C. new account information form, quarterly financial statements, and security certification
- D. balance sheet, income and cash flow statements of the portfolio management company

Answer: A

Explanation:

Disclosure documents are documents that provide information about a mutual fund's features, risks, performance, fees, and expenses to investors and regulators. Disclosure documents are required by securities laws and must be prepared and filed by the fund manager in accordance with the prescribed rules and standards. Disclosure documents relating to mutual funds include the following:

* Statement of net assets: This is a document that shows the value of the fund's assets and liabilities as of a specific date. It also shows the net asset value per unit (NAVPU) of the fund, which is the price at which investors can buy or sell units of the fund. The statement of net assets is part of the fund's financial statements, which are prepared and filed semi-annually and annually.

* Annual information form (AIF): This is a document that provides additional information about the fund that is not included in the simplified prospectus or the fund facts. The AIF includes information such as the fund's history, organization, management, governance, policies, risks, conflicts of interest, fees, expenses, taxation, and legal matters. The AIF is prepared and filed annually.

* Management reports of fund performance (MRFP): These are documents that provide information about the fund's financial performance, portfolio composition, risk profile, and management expenses.

The MRFPs are prepared by the fund manager and filed semi-annually and annually. The MRFPs include sections such as financial highlights, past performance, summary of investment portfolio, management discussion of fund performance, and financial statements. ### NEW QUESTION # 218

Marc asks his new client for copies of his mortgage documents. Which Know Your Client component is Marc researching?

- A. Investment knowledge
- B. Financial circumstances
- C. Personal circumstances
- D. Financial goals and objectives

Answer: B

Explanation:

Financial circumstances are a critical component of the Know Your Client (KYC) process, as they determine the client's ability to commit savings to investments and the level of risk they can assume. Mortgage documents provide insights into the client's debt and obligations, which are essential for assessing financial circumstances. The feedback from the document states:

"Financial circumstances are an important consideration in judging the suitability of investments, because they determine the amount of savings clients can commit to investing and the level of risk they can assume.

Marc's client's mortgage document will give Marc valuable insights into the level of debt and mortgage obligations his client has, helping in evaluating the client's financial circumstances." Reference: Chapter 1 - The Role of the Mutual Fund Sales Representative

NEW QUESTION # 219

Which of the following money market securities have the highest degree of risk for the investor?

- A. Municipal Short-Term Paper
- B. Commercial Paper
- C. Treasury Bills
- D. Bankers' Acceptances

Answer: B

Explanation:

Commercial paper is a type of money market security that is issued by corporations and financial institutions to raise short-term funds. Commercial paper has a maturity of less than one year, typically between 30 and 90 days. Commercial paper is unsecured, meaning that it is not backed by any collateral or guarantee. Therefore, commercial paper has the highest degree of risk for the investor among the four types of money market securities listed, as it depends on the creditworthiness and liquidity of the issuer. If the issuer defaults or faces financial difficulties, the investor may lose part or all of their principal. Commercial paper also has a higher interest rate than other money market securities to compensate for the higher risk.

The other types of money market securities are:

* Bankers' acceptances: These are negotiable instruments that are issued by a bank on behalf of a client who needs to finance international trade transactions. Bankers' acceptances have a maturity of less than one year, usually between 30 and 180 days. Bankers' acceptances are secured by the bank's guarantee and the underlying goods or services that are being traded. Therefore, bankers' acceptances have a lower degree of risk for the investor than commercial paper, as they are backed by the bank's creditworthiness and the value of the trade transaction.

* Treasury bills: These are short-term debt obligations that are issued by the federal government to finance its operations and programs. Treasury bills have a maturity of less than one year, usually between 3 and 12 months. Treasury bills are considered risk-free investments, as they are backed by the full faith and credit of the government. Therefore, treasury bills have the lowest degree of risk for the investor among the four types of money market securities listed, as they have virtually no default risk or liquidity risk. Treasury bills also have the lowest interest rate among the four types of money market securities, as they reflect the risk-free rate of return.

* Municipal short-term paper: These are short-term debt instruments that are issued by municipalities or other local governments to finance their capital projects or operating expenses. Municipal short-term paper has a maturity of less than one year, usually between 30 and 270 days. Municipal short-term paper is secured by the taxing power and revenue sources of the issuing municipality or government.

Therefore, municipal short-term paper has a lower degree of risk for the investor than commercial paper, as it is backed by the ability and willingness of the issuer to levy taxes and collect revenues.

- C. Default
- D. Systematic

Answer: D
