Microsoft Designing and Implementing a Microsoft Azure AI Solution Sample Questions (Q49-Q54):

NEW QUESTION # 49
Your organization uses speech synthesis and now you want to change the voice used in the service. How can you achieve that?

- A. Set the SpeechSynthesisVoiceName property of the SpeechConfig object to the desired voice name.
- B. Specify a filename in the AudioConfig object.
- C. Specify a SpeechSynthesisOutputFormat enumeration in the SpeechConfig object.

Answer: A

Explanation:
To set a voice, set the SpeechSynthesisVoiceName property of the SpeechConfig to a voice name, such as "en-GB-George".

NEW QUESTION # 50
You are developing a call to the Face API. The call must find similar faces from an existing list named employeefaces. The employeefaces list contains 60,000 images.
How should you complete the body of the HTTP request? To answer, drag the appropriate values to the correct targets. Each value may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.
NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

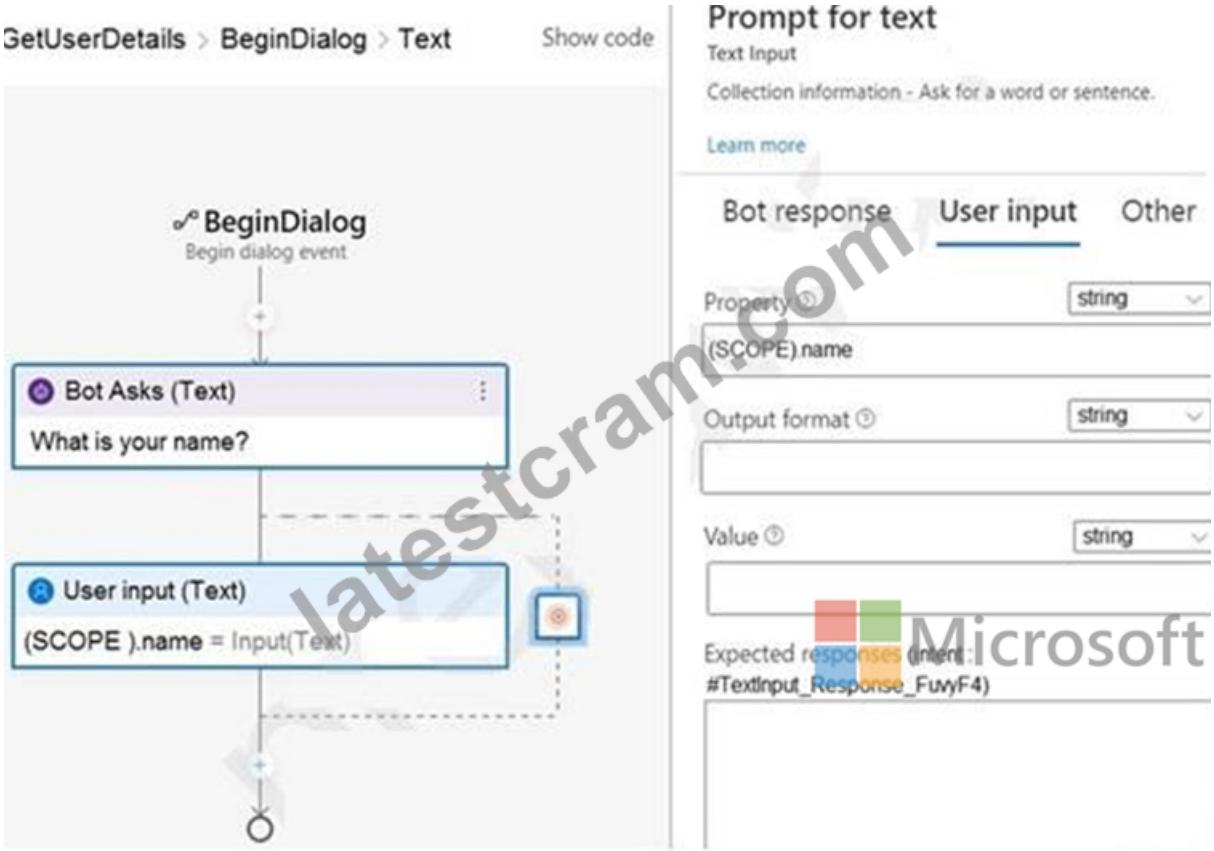
NEW QUESTION # 52

You are building a chatbot by using the Microsoft Bot Framework Composer as shown in the exhibit. (Click the Exhibit tab.)



The chatbot contains a dialog named GetUserDetails. GetUserDetails contains a TextInput control that prompts users for their name. The user input will be stored in a property named name.
You need to ensure that you can dispose of the property when the last active dialog ends.
Which scope should you assign to name?

- A. dialog
- B. curn
- C. conversation
- D. user

Answer: A

Explanation:
In the Microsoft Bot Framework Composer, there are four main property scopes for storing variables or properties:
* dialog scope
* Lives only for the lifetime of the dialog.
* Once the dialog ends, properties stored in the dialog scope are automatically cleared.
* Best suited for temporary values such as user inputs collected during a dialog, like "name" in this case.
* user scope
* Persists across all conversations with the user.
* Data stored here remains available even after dialogs end, making it unsuitable if you want to dispose of the property at the end of the dialog.
* conversation scope
* Persists throughout the lifetime of a single conversation (from start to end).
* Useful for maintaining state across multiple dialogs in the same conversation, but still not automatically disposed of when a dialog ends.
* turn (curn in the options is likely a typo)
* Lives only for a single turn (a single exchange of user and bot messages).
* Cleared at the end of the turn, which is too short-lived for this requirement.
* Requirement: "Ensure that you can dispose of the property when the last active dialog ends."
* That means the property should exist only during the dialog execution and then be discarded.
* Correct scope for this scenario is dialog.
The answer: A. dialog
* Manage properties in Bot Framework Composer
* Scopes in Bot Framework Composer

* Bot Framework Composer memory model

NEW QUESTION # 53
You are building a Language Understanding model for purchasing tickets.
You have the following utterance for an intent named PurchaseAndSendTickets.
Purchase [2 audit business] tickets to [Paris] [next Monday] and send tickets to [email@domain.com] You need to select the entity types. The solution must use built-in entity types to minimize training data whenever possible.
Which entity type should you use for each label? To answer, drag the appropriate entity types to the correct labels. Each entity type may be used once, more than once, or not at all.
You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content.
