CFA Institute Certificate in ESG Investing Sample Questions (Q246-Q251):

NEW QUESTION # 246

Compared to public companies, creating private company scorecards is challenging as:

- A. less information is available in the public domain
- B. management is more unwilling to disclose commercially sensitive information
- C. rating agencies are more critical of private companies

Answer: A

Explanation:

Creating ESG scorecards for private companies presents unique challenges compared to public companies:

Less information is available in the public domain (A): Private companies are not required to disclose as much information as public companies, which are subject to regulatory requirements for transparency and reporting. This lack of publicly available data makes it more difficult to assess and create comprehensive ESG scorecards for private companies.

Rating agencies are more critical of private companies (B): While rating agencies might have stringent criteria, the primary challenge is the availability of data rather than the critical nature of the rating agencies.

Management is more unwilling to disclose commercially sensitive information (C): While management's unwillingness to disclose information can be a factor, the fundamental issue is the overall lower level of mandatory disclosure for private companies. Public companies have established reporting standards and are legally obligated to provide certain information, making the data more readily accessible.

Therefore, the main reason why creating private company scorecards is challenging is due to the limited availability of information in the public domain, making it difficult to gather comprehensive ESG data.

NEW QUESTION # 247

According to a study of the Hermes UK Focus Fund: which of the following engagement objectives was most likely to be achieved through shareholder activism?

- A. Restructuring and financial policies
- B. Remuneration policy changes
- C. Improvements to investor relations

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to a study of the Hermes UK Focus Fund, engagement objectives most likely to be achieved through shareholder activism include restructuring and financial policies. The study found that the success rate for achieving objectives related to restructuring and financial policies was higher compared to other objectives such as remuneration policy changes and improvements to investor relations. This indicates that shareholder activism is more effective in driving changes in corporate structure and financial strategies.

NEW QUESTION # 248

Regulations relating to ESG investing generally involve which of the following themes?

- A. Scenario analysis
- B. Stewardship
- C. Green bond issuance

Answer: B

Explanation:

Stewardship (Option A) is a core regulatory theme in ESG investing, focusing on how investors influence corporate behavior through active ownership (voting, engagement, and dialogue). Regulatory frameworks such as the UK Stewardship Code, Japan

Stewardship Code, and EU Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR) emphasize investor stewardship responsibilities. Scenario analysis (Option B) is used for risk assessment, particularly in climate stress testing (e.g., TCFD recommendations), but is not the primary focus of ESG regulations.

Green bond issuance (Option C) is regulated under ICMA Green Bond Principles and EU Green Bond Standards, but ESG investing regulations are broader than just bond issuance.

NEW QUESTION # 249

Negative screening of tobacco-related products is best grouped into which of the following basic categories?

- A. Universal exclusion
- B. Idiosyncratic exclusion
- C. Conduct-related exclusion

Answer: A

Explanation:

Universal exclusion applies to sectors that investors completely exclude, such as tobacco, weapons, or controversial industries.

* Idiosyncratic exclusions (B) are case-by-case exclusions based on specific client preferences.

* Conduct-related exclusions (C) focus on companies violating ethical norms, rather than entire sectors.

NEW QUESTION # 250

A regulatory framework designed to support ESG integration in corporate disclosures is:

- A. The US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA)
- B. The EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)
- C. The EU Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR)

Answer: C

Explanation:

The EU Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation (SFDR) mandates ESG-related disclosure requirements for investment managers and financial advisors, ensuring transparent reporting on sustainability risks and ESG integration.

* GDPR (B) is about data privacy, not ESG disclosures.

* FCPA (C) targets anti-corruption laws, not sustainability reporting.
