CWNP Certified Wireless Design Professional Sample Questions (Q252-Q257):

NEW QUESTION # 252

Your new customer is concerned about maintaining privacy for their proprietary information when you conduct information gathering for their WLAN design. Which document can you use to directly address their concern?

- A. BoM
- B. SoW
- C. NDA
- D. Hold Harmless

Answer: C

Explanation:

A Non-Disclosure Agreement (NDA) is a legal contract that establishes a confidential relationship between parties. In the context of WLAN design, an NDA ensures that any proprietary or sensitive information shared by the customer during the information-gathering phase is kept confidential and not disclosed to unauthorized parties. This agreement builds trust between the service provider and the customer, facilitating open communication and information sharing necessary for effective WLAN design. NEW QUESTION # 253

When deploying an Enterprise-class VoWLAN infrastructure, which Access Category (AC) must be used to prioritize voice packets and ensure optimal performance?

- A. AC_BK
- B. AC_BE
- C. AC_VO
- D. AC_VI

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 254

A North American business traveler connects to a hotel's 2.4 GHz SSID in Europe and notices low RSSI from an AP in the room but experiences no issues with RSSI in the lobby. What is the most likely reason for the low RSSI in the room?

- A. The switchport that the AP is connected to is only capable of transmitting at 10 Mbps
- B. The AP in the room is using ZigBee instead of Wi-Fi
- C. The AP in the room is using Bluetooth instead of Wi-Fi
- D. The AP in the room is transmitting on channel 13 and the traveler associated to an AP on channels 1 through 11 in the lobby

Answer: D

Explanation:

In North America, Wi-Fi devices operating in the 2.4 GHz band are typically restricted to channels 1 through 11. However, in Europe, channels 12 and 13 are also permitted. If a European AP is configured to operate on channel 13, a North American device may not recognize or connect to it, leading to low RSSI readings or inability to connect.

Passei Direto

How-To Geek

In this scenario, the AP in the room is likely operating on channel 13, which the traveler's device cannot utilize, resulting in low RSSI. Conversely, the lobby APs are operating on channels 1 through 11, which are compatible with the traveler's device, leading to normal RSSI readings.

Other options, such as the AP using ZigBee or Bluetooth, are unlikely, as these technologies are distinct from Wi-Fi and would not present as Wi-Fi SSIDs. The switchport speed, while affecting throughput, does not directly impact RSSI.

NEW QUESTION # 255

When using a predictive design tool, you have selected access points (APs) with an antenna gain of 3 dBi and set the transmit power to 25 mW. What is the EIRP (Effective Isotropic Radiated Power) of the APs in this design?

- A. 17 dBm
- B. 11 dBm
- C. 6.25 mW
- D. 125 mW

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 256

Which vertically polarized antenna is best suited for a WLAN infrastructure with access points mounted on a ceiling over 6 meters high, where all client stations operate from the floor level?

- A. Grid
- B. Low-gain dipole
- C. Patch
- D. Dish

Answer: B
