NEW QUESTION # 297

A business analyst at Universal Containers is converting a requirements document into user stories for upcoming Manufacturing Cloud deployment. The first requirement is "finance needs a time tracking sys containers." Which option best represents the "IF" component of the INVEST checklist to make a good user story from this requirement?

- A. As a finance user I want a Timesheet object implemented so I can accurately report on container profitability.
- B. As a finance user, I want an Assembly Time field on the container cost record so I can accurately report on container profitability.
- C. As a finance user, I want to know how long it takes to assemble a container so I can accurately report on container profitability.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The option that best represents the "I" component of the INVEST checklist to make a good user story from this requirement is B. As a finance user I want to know how long it takes to assemble a container so I can accurately report on container profitability. The "I" component stands for Independent, which means that the user story should be self-contained and not depend on or overlap with other user stories. Option B is independent because it focuses on a specific need and goal of the finance user, and does not rely on or affect other user stories. The other options are either dependent or irrelevant. Option A is dependent because it specifies a particular solution (Timesheet object) that may depend on or overlap with other user stories.

Option C is irrelevant because it does not address the requirement of knowing how long it takes to assemble a container.

At Universal Containers, a business analyst (BA) solution architect, lead developer, quality assurance lead, and other team members need access to user stories as part of the Agile lifecycle of enhancements to a Marketing Cloud integration project. What should the BA do to give all team members access and visibility to the most recent user stories as the project is in motion?

- A. Define a common repository to hold all user stories and track changes over time.
- B. Allow each team member to merge all user stories at the end of user acceptance testing.
- C. Send emails to stakeholders with all of the changes to the user stories.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The best practice for giving all team members access and visibility to the most recent user stories as the project is in motion is to define a common repository to hold all user stories and track changes over time. A common repository is a centralized location where all user stories are stored and managed. It allows all team members to access, view, edit, comment, prioritize, assign, and update user stories as needed. It also tracks changes over time and provides version control and history of user stories. A common repository can be a tool such as Jira, Trello, Asana, or Salesforce Agile Accelerator. References:
