WGU Global Economics for Managers (C211, UZC2) Global-Economics-for-Managers Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q55-Q60):

55. Frage

What is a tariff levied on imports that are selling below cost in order to unfairly drive domestic firms out of business?

- A. Factor endowment
- B. Deadweight cost
- C. Opportunity cost
- D. Antidumping duty

Antwort: D

Begründung:

An antidumping duty is a tariff imposed on imported goods that are sold at unfairly low prices, often below cost or below the price charged in the exporter's home market. Dumping can harm domestic producers because foreign firms may temporarily underprice goods to gain market share or drive competitors out of business. Governments use antidumping duties to offset this unfair pricing and restore competitive conditions.

Option C is correct because it directly identifies the trade remedy used against below-cost imports. Factor endowment refers to a country's available resources, not a tariff. Deadweight cost is the net welfare loss caused by tariffs or other distortions. Opportunity cost is the value of the next best alternative forgone when a choice is made.

56. Frage

Which strategy for responding to multinational enterprises is appropriate in a situation in which there is low industry pressure to globalize and competitive assets are customized to home markets?

- A. Retainer strategy
- B. Contender strategy
- C. Responder strategy
- D. Defender strategy

Antwort: D

Begründung:

The defender strategy is appropriate when industry pressure to globalize is low and the firm's competitive assets are customized to the home market. In this situation, the firm does not face strong pressure to expand globally, and its strengths are mainly local, such as domestic customer relationships, local distribution knowledge, local brand reputation, or familiarity with national regulations.

Option C is correct because a defender focuses on protecting its home-market position by exploiting local advantages that multinational enterprises may find difficult to copy. A contender strategy fits high globalization pressure with home-market-customized assets. An extender strategy would involve using transferable capabilities abroad, and a dodger strategy usually involves cooperating with or selling to multinational firms when pressure is high and assets are weak. Therefore, defender is the correct response.

57. Frage

What is true about gross domestic product (GDP)?

- A. It is thought to be the single best measure of a society's economic well-being.
- B. It places heavier weight on intangible services than tangible goods.
- C. Its year-to-year percentage change represents the inflation rate.
- D. It includes the income of citizens working abroad.

Antwort: A

Begründung:

In Global Economics for Managers, gross domestic product (GDP) is widely regarded as the single best available measure of a society's economic well-being, making option A correct. GDP measures the total market value of all final goods and services produced within a country's borders during a given period.

Although GDP has limitations—it does not account for income distribution, environmental degradation, or non-market activities—it remains the most comprehensive and consistent indicator of economic performance across countries and over time.

Option B is incorrect because inflation is measured by price indices such as the GDP deflator or the consumer price index (CPI), not by GDP growth. Option C is incorrect because GDP values goods and services at market prices without weighting one more heavily than the other. Option D is incorrect because GDP excludes income earned by citizens working abroad; that income is included in gross national income (GNI), not GDP.

Global Economics for Managers emphasizes that GDP is particularly useful for comparing economic output and living standards internationally, especially when adjusted for purchasing power parity.

Thus, option A correctly describes GDP.

58. Frage

What are represented by informal institutions?

- A. Rules
- B. Written laws
- C. Ethics
- D. Regulations

Antwort: C

Begründung:

Informal institutions are unwritten social constraints that shape behavior, including norms, customs, values, traditions, and ethics.

Option B is correct because ethics represents an informal guide to behavior rather than a formally codified legal requirement.

Informal institutions reduce uncertainty by helping people understand what is socially acceptable, trustworthy, or legitimate in a particular society. They matter greatly in global business because managers may comply with formal laws but still fail if they ignore local customs or ethical expectations. Rules and regulations are usually formal when written and enforced by legal authorities. Written laws are clearly formal institutions. Informal institutions are enforced mainly through social approval, reputation, relationships, and cultural expectations rather than courts or government penalties.

59. Frage

What are properties of a typical indifference curve? (Choose TWO.)

- A. Indifference curves can intersect.
- B. Indifference curves do not cross.
- C. Indifference curves slope upward.
- D. Higher indifference curves are preferred to lower ones.

Antwort: B,D

Begründung:

In Global Economics for Managers, indifference curves have two key properties: higher curves represent higher utility, and curves do not cross, making options A and C correct.

If curves crossed, preferences would be inconsistent. Higher curves indicate greater satisfaction.

Options B and D violate consumer theory assumptions.

Thus, A and C are correct.
