PMI Portfolio Management Professional (PfMP) Sample Questions (Q129-Q134):

NEW QUESTION # 129
A new portfolio is initiated with you as the portfolio manager, you started by developing the portfolio strategic plan and are currently reviewing the Organizational Process Assets; which of the options can be a part of this input?

- A. List of portfolio components and Portfolio component selection criteria
- B. IT Strategies and Policies
- C. Portfolio Components files
- D. Inventory of Work

Answer: B

Explanation:
Explanation
Inventory of work is an input to this process and not part of another input; the list of portfolio components with their selection criteria and related files are Portfolio Process Assets. IT Strategies and Policies is the only option pointing to organizational process assets

NEW QUESTION # 130
In a portfolio, data is an abundant asset, and managing the information aiming for a better decision making is critical. For this you use a variety of Quantitative and Qualitative analysis methods. Considering that you are currently working to quantitatively measure component values, however a few components have intangible benefits and can not be measured using quantitative analysis. How do you plan to proceed?

- A. Using assumptions
- B. Scoring models
- C. Subject Matter Experts
- D. Benefits Realization

Answer: B

Explanation:
Explanation
Scoring Models are part of the value management and scoring analysis. Scoring models may be used to consistently document and assess financially intangible portfolio benefits (those benefits that cannot be assessed using financial return on investment methods). Please note that Subject Matter Experts can be used as well; however, it is not the best option here

NEW QUESTION # 131
Based on the data in the following table, your organization should pursue which component:

1	2
1	3	2	3
1	4	2	4
1	5	2	5	3	5	4	5

- A. Component 3
- B. Component 2
- C. Component 1
- D. Component 5

Answer: D

Explanation:
In portfolio management, when evaluating components based on interdependencies or the number of connections between initiatives, the goal is often to identify the "anchor" component or the one that provides the most significant foundation for subsequent work.
The rationale forOption Ais as follows:
Network Centrality and Connectivity:Based on the provided table (image_31bd42.png),Component 5has the highest degree of connectivity or occurrence across the matrix rows. It appears to be a prerequisite or a shared dependency for the most significant number of other paths or groupings.
Strategic Foundation:Components with the most linkages are often prioritized because their delay or failure would have a "multiplier effect" on the rest of the portfolio. By pursuing Component 5 first, the organization stabilizes the "hub" upon which other components (1, 2, 3, and 4) likely depend for resources, data, or shared infrastructure.
Maximizing Portfolio Throughput:Pursuing the most integrated component early reduces the overall risk of "bottlenecks" later in the portfolio lifecycle.
Why the other options are incorrect:
Options B, C, & D (Components 3, 2, and 1):While these components are part of the mix, the data shows they have fewer interconnections or appear less frequently in the dependency strings compared to Component 5.
Pursuing them in isolation before the foundational work of Component 5 is complete could lead to idle resources or rework once the primary dependency is finally addressed.

NEW QUESTION # 132
When we talk about portfolios, programs and projects, it is inevitable to mention the business value which is the sum of tangible and intangible assets of an organization, also known as the net quantifiable benefit. When it comes to business value, at which level of the organization is the delivery of Business Value optimized?

- A. Operational
- B. Project
- C. Program
- D. Portfolio

Answer: D

Explanation:
According to theStandard for Portfolio Management(PMI), while all levels of management are concerned with value, theOptimizationof that value occurs specifically at thePortfolio level.
Portfolio Level (Option A):The portfolio is the high-level bridge between organizational strategy and execution. Optimization at this level involves selecting the best mix of components (projects, programs, and operations) that collectively maximize the organization's business value within resource and risk constraints.
While a project or program might deliver a specific "piece" of value, only the portfolio has the visibility to trade off resources between competing initiatives to ensure thetotal net quantifiable benefitis as high as possible.
The Optimization Process:During the "Optimize Portfolio" process, the portfolio manager uses tools like the Efficient Frontier or Cost-Benefit Analysis to ensure that the aggregate tangible assets (monetary value, market share) and intangible assets (brand equity, public benefit, strategic alignment) are maximized across the entire enterprise.
Why other options are incorrect based on the Standard:
B). Project:Projects are focused on thedeliveryof a specific product, service, or result. They are measured by their adherence to scope, time, and cost (the "Iron Triangle"). Projects produce outputs that lead to value, but they do not "optimize" value across the organization.
C). Program:Programs focus on therealization of benefitsby coordinating related projects. While a program optimizes benefits for a specific strategic initiative, it does not have the authority to balance value across theentireorganization's investment pool.
D). Operational:Operations are concerned with thesustenanceof business value through ongoing activities.
They focus on efficiency and consistency rather than the strategic optimization of new value-generating investments.
In summary, thePortfoliolevel is where the "big picture" decisions are made to shift resources and priorities to achieve the highest possible return on investment for the organization.
