False Negative means where true value was 1 but predicted value was 0 and that is 1033 in this case The confusion matrix shows cases where both the predicted and actual values were 1 (known as true positives) at the top left, and cases where both the predicted and the actual values were 0 (true negatives) at the bottom right. The other cells show cases where the predicted and actual values differ (false positives and false negatives).

NEW QUESTION # 259

You have a website that includes customer reviews.

You need to store the reviews in English and present the reviews to users in their respective language by recognizing each user's geographical location.

Which type of natural language processing workload should you use?

- A. key phrase extraction
- B. language modeling
- C. translation

- D. speech recognition

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to the Microsoft Azure AI Fundamentals (AI-900) syllabus and Microsoft Learn module "Describe features of natural language processing (NLP) workloads on Azure," translation is a core NLP workload that converts text from one language into another while maintaining meaning and context.

In this scenario, the website stores reviews in English and must present them in the user's native language based on geographical location. This directly requires a translation workload, which uses Azure Cognitive Services - specifically, the Translator service - to automatically translate content dynamically for each user.

Other options explained:

* B. Language modeling involves predicting the next word in a sentence or understanding linguistic patterns; it's used in model training, not translation.

* C. Key phrase extraction identifies main ideas in text, not language conversion.

* D. Speech recognition converts spoken words into written text but does not perform translation or handle geographic adaptation.

Microsoft's Translator service supports real-time text translation, multi-language detection, and context preservation, making it ideal for global websites. The AI-900 study guide emphasizes translation as one of the most common NLP workloads, enabling applications to break language barriers and enhance accessibility for diverse audiences.

Therefore, based on official Microsoft Learn material, the correct answer is:

A. translation.

NEW QUESTION # 260

You use drones to identify where weeds grow between rows of crops to send an instruction for the removal of the weeds. This is an example of which type of computer vision?

- A. object detection
- B. scene segmentation
- C. optical character recognition (OCR)

Answer: A

Explanation:

Object detection is similar to tagging, but the API returns the bounding box coordinates for each tag applied.

For example, if an image contains a dog, cat and person, the Detect operation will list those objects together with their coordinates in the image.
