CIPS Defining Business Needs Sample Questions (Q98-Q103):

NEW QUESTION # 98

A purchaser is looking for alternative supplies if there is a major disruption to their supply chain, including logistics, manufacturing and all support services. Which of the following method is that purchaser applying?

- A. Transfer the risk
- B. Terminate the risk
- C. Treat the risk
- D. Tolerate the risk

Answer: C

Explanation:

Risk control is the process by which an organization reduces the likelihood of a risk event occurring or mitigates the effects that risk should it occur. CIPS preferred way to determine your risk control strategy is to use the four T's Process:

Transferring Risk can be achieved through the use of various forms of insurance, or the payment to third parties who are prepared to take the risk on behalf of the organization. Tolerating Risk is where no action is taken to mitigate or reduce a risk. This may be because the cost of instituting risk reduction or mitigation activity is not cost-effective or the risks of impact are at so low that they are deemed acceptable to the business. Even when these risks are tolerated they should be monitored because future changes may make it no longer tolerable.

Treating Risk is a method of controlling risk through actions that reduce the likelihood of the risk occurring or minimize its impact prior to its occurrence. Also, there are contingent measures that can be developed to reduce the impact of an event once it has occurred. Finding an alternative supplier is an example of treating the risk.

Terminating Risk is the simplest and most often ignored method of dealing with risk. It is the approach that should be most favored where possible and simply involves risk elimination. This can be done by altering an inherently risky process or practice to remove the risk. The same can be used when reviewing practices and processes in all areas of the business.

If an item presents a risk and can be changed or removed without it materially affecting the business, then removing the risk should be the first option considered; rather than attempting to treat, tolerate or transfer it.

NEW QUESTION # 99

A company is considering buying a new computer system to handle large amounts of personal data and expects the system to perform in a particular way. Which of the following should be included in the performance specification? Select TWO that apply.
System operating conditions

- A. List of inputs
- B. Brand name
- C. Technical drawings
- D. List of outputs

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION # 100

Standards are documents that stipulate or recommend minimum levels of performance and quality levels of goods and services. The government is the only source of any standards that are applied by businesses in nations. Is this correct?

- A. Yes, the only other possible source is through international initiatives such as ISO
- B. No, governments only create standards for products related to national security
- C. No, standards can be generated internally by other organisations besides the government and ISO
- D. Yes, because a country has a national body that regulates standards within the nation

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 101

The procurement team of a global supermarket has created a business case for a corporate social responsibility (CSR) sourcing strategy to meet the corporate objective of sustainability. This would require sourcing only from suppliers who meet ethical standards, a reduction in plastic, and using recycled material where possible.

Which of the following business benefits would be mentioned in the business case? Select TWO that apply:

- A. Leverage of technology
- B. Reduced cost
- C. Fulfilment of a business objective
- D. Increased capacity
- E. Improved brand equity

Answer: C,E

Explanation:

Detailed Explanation:

A (Fulfilment of business objective): Aligning procurement practices with sustainability goals supports the overall corporate strategy.

D (Improved brand equity): Sustainable practices enhance reputation and consumer trust. Other options, like increased capacity or reduced costs, are secondary or unrelated to CSR initiatives. Reference: CIPS Level 4, CSR and Sustainability.

NEW QUESTION # 102

To improve the productivity, Plantation Ltd is planning to purchase a tractor, which it has never bought before. The project must be quick to catch up with the next growing season. Leanne, a junior procurement staff at the company, assumes that she could skip market analysis stage to save time. Is this assumption reasonable?

- A. No, market analysis will inform the company of the pricing as well as latest technology trends
- B. Yes, Leanne just needs to purchase the tractor from her friend's company
- C. Yes, the company has extensive experience in purchasing tractor
- D. No, the company assesses supplier's performance solely based on market analysis

Answer: A

Explanation:

Market analysis is a stage in CIPS Procurement and Supply Cycle. This stage informs the purchaser about the number of suppliers, the average pricing, and product trends. Even urgent purchase should undergo market analysis. Without undertaking this stage, the buying organisation may not purchase the right product, or they may purchase at higher price.
