NEW QUESTION # 129

Employers must have a program to communicate more details on all hazards, including a _____ that must be available for each chemical at the work site.

- A. Asset standard Act
- B. Product stability program
- C. Material Safety Data Sheet
- D. Procurement Asset Safety Program

Answer: C

Explanation:

Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS), now referred to as Safety Data Sheets (SDS) under the Globally Harmonized System (GHS), provide detailed information about chemicals, including hazards, handling procedures, and emergency measures. OSHA regulations require employers to maintain these sheets for all hazardous substances in the workplace.

Asset Standard Act (A), Procurement Asset Safety Program (C), and Product Stability Program (D) are not applicable to this requirement.

NEW QUESTION # 131

Which of the following is NOT the advantage of contract services?

- A. Expertise
- B. Staffing
- C. Administration
- D. Control

Answer: D

Explanation:

One of the primary drawbacks of using contract security services is the reduction in direct control over the personnel and operations. While contract services offer benefits such as simplified administration, quick staffing solutions, and access to specialized expertise, they limit the organization's ability to directly manage and discipline personnel or tailor services to company-specific policies and culture.

Administration (B), Staffing (C), and Expertise (D) are all advantages of contract services.

Control (A) is a typical advantage of proprietary systems, not contract models.
