질문 # 360

When a user is in the office, web pages are loading slowly on the user's phone. Which of the following best explains this issue?

- A. Sluggish response time
- B. Degraded network service
- C. Low storage space
- D. Exceeded the data usage limit

정답: B

설명:

Slow loading of web pages on a mobile device while in an office environment is often related to network issues rather than device storage or data limits. The most accurate explanation is degraded network service, which means the quality or bandwidth of the network connection is poor, resulting in slow or unreliable internet access. This can be caused by network congestion, poor Wi-Fi signal strength, interference, or configuration issues with network infrastructure. Unlike exceeding data limits which typically results in throttling or no service, degraded service implies the network is active but performing poorly. Low storage space generally impacts device performance and app functionality but does not directly cause slow page loads. Sluggish response time is a vague term but could be related to degraded network service. Therefore, degraded network service is the best choice. This aligns with Core 2 objectives focusing on troubleshooting connectivity issues and network performance degradation.

질문 # 361

Which of the following file types should be used to install software on a macOS computer? (Select two).

- A. .dmg
- B. .pkg
- C. .msi
- D. .yum
- E. .ps1
- F. .exe

정답: A,B

설명:

The correct answers are B. .pkg and F. .dmg.

pkg (Package Installer) - This is the standard macOS package format for software installations. It often includes installation scripts and can be used for software distribution.

dmg (Disk Image File) - A macOS disk image file that contains software installers. Users typically mount the file and drag the application into the Applications folder to install it.

Why Other Options Are Incorrect:

A: .yum - This is used for Linux package management and is not compatible with macOS.

C: .msi - This is the Windows Installer package format, not used on macOS.

D: .ps1 - This is a PowerShell script file used in Windows, not for installing macOS applications.

E: .exe - This is an executable file format for Windows applications and does not run on macOS without third-party emulation (e.g., Wine).
