Nutanix Certified Professional - Database Automation (NCP-DB) v6.10 Sample Questions (Q235-Q240):

NEW QUESTION # 235

An NDB administrator would like to configure a database with a Time Machine protection mode that includes the Log Catchup operation.

What would be the most essential component to make such a configuration possible?

- A. An SLA retention schedule must be identified for daily snapshots.
- B. The Log Catchup frequency must be selected and conform to RPO requirements.
- C. A protection SLA with the Continuous Log Retention option must be selected.

- D. At least one snapshot must be taken daily on the database.

Answer: C

Explanation:

To configure a database with a Time Machine protection mode that includes the Log Catchup operation in NDB, the most essential component is a Service Level Agreement (SLA) that supports continuous log retention. The Log Catchup operation enables point-in-time recovery (PITR) by replaying transaction logs from a specified point, ensuring minimal data loss and meeting Recovery Point Objective (RPO) requirements. This functionality depends on the Time Machine being configured with an SLA that includes the "Continuous Log Retention" option, which ensures transaction logs are captured and retained continuously alongside snapshots.

NEW QUESTION # 236

What behavior is observed when applying patch profiles as a Super Admin?

- A. Hidden patches can be applied.
- B. Unpublished patches can be applied.
- C. Deprecated patches can be applied.
- D. Published patches cannot be applied if currently deprecated.

Answer: D

Explanation:

In the context of Nutanix Database Automation (NCP-DB), a Super Admin has the authority to apply patch profiles. However, if a patch is marked as deprecated, even if it's published, it cannot be applied. This is because deprecation is a status that indicates the patch is outdated or has been superseded by a newer version, and thus should not be used. This behavior ensures that only the most up-to-date and secure patches are applied to the system, maintaining the integrity and security of the database environment.

NEW QUESTION # 237

An administrator needs to restore a database provisioned on Storage Spaces. The virtual disks are shared with multiple databases. Which restore method is supported?

- A. Disk-based restore via NDB CLI
- B. Copy-based restore via NDB CLI
- C. Disk-based restore via NDB GUI
- D. Copy-based restore via NDB GUI

Answer: D

Explanation:

For restoring a database provisioned on Storage Spaces, especially when virtual disks are shared among multiple databases, the supported method is a copy-based restore via the NDB GUI. This method allows for a precise and controlled restoration process suitable for shared storage environments.

NEW QUESTION # 238

An administrator needs to provision PostgreSQL instance from a software profile. The software profile was created from a VM with services such as etcd, HAProxy, Patroni and keepalived installed. What should the administrator perform to successfully provision an HA instance?

- A. Enable the services, create a software profile version, and provision an HA instance.
- B. Disable the services, create a software profile version, and provision an HA instance.
- C. Provision an HA instance with the services enabled.
- D. Provision an HA instance with the services disabled.

Answer: D

Explanation:

To provision a PostgreSQL HA instance from a software profile created from a VM with services like etcd, HAProxy, Patroni, and keepalived installed, the administrator must ensure the instance aligns with NDB's HA framework. These services (e.g., Patroni for PostgreSQL HA management, HAProxy for load balancing) may conflict with NDB's built-in HA mechanisms. Provisioning an HA instance with these services disabled allows NDB to manage HA using its native replication and failover capabilities (e.g., streaming replication), avoiding duplication or interference from the VM's pre-installed services.

NEW QUESTION # 239

An administrator wants to migrate an existing MSSQL Server database to NDB.
How should the administrator complete this migration?

- A. Backup your database VM and import it into Nutanix.
- B. Provision a new database server VM and database then migrate the data.
- C. Use Nutanix Move to migrate the database server VM.
- D. Create a new database server VM and database then register it with NDB.

Answer: B

Explanation:

To migrate an existing Microsoft SQL Server (MSSQL) database to NDB, the recommended approach is to:

Provision a new database server VM and database: Use the NDB interface to provision a new VM and configure an MSSQL database instance on the Nutanix platform. This leverages NDB's automated provisioning capabilities to ensure compatibility with Nutanix infrastructure.

Migrate the data: Transfer the data from the existing MSSQL database to the newly provisioned database. This can be achieved using native MSSQL tools (e.g., backup/restore, log shipping, or replication) or NDB's data migration features, such as cloning or restoring from a backup, depending on the source environment.
