NEW QUESTION # 325

WW is a quoted manufacturing company. The Finance Director has addressed the shareholders during WW's annual general meeting. She has told the shareholders that WW raised equity during the year and used the funds to repay a large loan that was maturing, thereby reducing WW's gearing ratio. At the conclusion of the Finance Director's speech one of the shareholders complained that it had been foolish for WW to have used equity to repay debt. The shareholder argued that the Modigliani and Miller model (with tax) offers proof that debt is cheaper than equity when companies pay tax on their profits. Which THREE arguments could the Finance Director have used in response to the shareholder?

- A. A lower gearing ratio will result in an increase in the value of the company
- B. The Modigliani and Miller model would only be valid in practice if WW's shareholders were aware of the model and believed in its validity
- C. Reducing the gearing ratio has reduced the financial risk of WW which will benefit shareholders
- D. The shareholder was confusing the cost of capital with shareholder wealth
- E. A lower gearing ratio creates greater flexibility for WW in the future
- F. WW was approaching a debt covenant limit and it was therefore important to reduce gearing.

Answer: C,E,F

Explanation:

B). WW was approaching a debt covenant limit...

If gearing was close to a covenant ceiling, repaying debt with equity avoids breaching the covenant and the costly consequences (default, renegotiation, higher rates).

C). A lower gearing ratio creates greater flexibility...

With less debt, WW has more headroom to borrow in the future if good projects arise, and is less constrained by lenders.

E). Reducing the gearing ratio has reduced the financial risk...

Less debt means lower risk of financial distress and lower volatility of equity returns, which is beneficial for shareholders even if debt is "cheaper" before adjusting for risk.

Why not the others?

A is not generally true; under MM with tax, more debt can increase firm value up to a point.

D is a bit off-target: the issue is not confusing cost of capital with wealth, but ignoring financial risk and constraints.

F is just wrong - a theory's validity doesn't depend on whether shareholders know it exists.
