The Red Hat Certified System Administrator (RHCSA) certification exam is designed to test the skills and knowledge of IT professionals who are responsible for managing Red Hat Enterprise Linux (RHEL) systems. EX200 Exam is a performance-based test that evaluates the ability of candidates to perform tasks related to system administration, including installation, configuration, and troubleshooting of RHEL systems. The RHCSA certification is a widely recognized and respected credential in the IT industry, indicating that the holder possesses the skills and knowledge required to manage RHEL systems effectively.

To be eligible for the Red Hat EX200 certification exam, candidates must have a good understanding of RHEL and its various components, including file systems, networking, security, and system administration. They must also have practical experience in managing and administering RHEL systems in a production environment. Candidates can prepare for the exam by taking Red Hat training courses, reading official documentation, and practicing on their own systems.
