- A. Action plan for success
- B. Cultural values
- C. Purpose for existing
- D. Strategy for success

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 289

Corporate headquarters has established the use of the Baldrige Award criteria as the standard for all divisions.

West Division's general manager calls the quality director and says, "We do not want to use this criteria, but your job as quality director for the division will be to make it look as if we are using it. " In this situation, the quality director's best response would be to tell the manager that

- A. this directive came from the Chief Executive Officer and only they can change it
- B. most of the initial changes will be transparent to the general operation of the division
- C. the standard is very useful and would improve the bottom line of the division
- D. only someone from corporate headquarters can authorize that level of change

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Baldrige Award criteria serve as a valuable framework for organizational excellence and performance improvement. However, the quality director should emphasize that decisions regarding the use of these criteria must come from the appropriate authority, which is corporate headquarters. Attempting to create an illusion of compliance without actual implementation would not align with ethical and transparent practices.<sup>12</sup> Therefore, the quality director should communicate the need for proper authorization and adherence to established standards.
