NEW QUESTION # 126

In a move toward using microservices, a company's Management team has asked all Development teams to build their services so that API requests depend only on that service's data store. One team is building a Payments service which has its own database; the service needs data that originates in the Accounts database. Both are using Amazon DynamoDB.

What approach will result in the simplest, decoupled, and reliable method to get near-real time updates from the Accounts database?

- A. Use Amazon Glue to perform frequent ETL updates from the Accounts database to the Payments database.
- B. Use Amazon Kinesis Data Firehose to deliver all changes from the Accounts database to the Payments database.
- C. Use Amazon DynamoDB Streams to deliver all changes from the Accounts database to the Payments database.
- D. Use Amazon ElastiCache in Payments, with the cache updated by triggers in the Accounts database.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 127

A company uses Amazon DynamoDB for managing and tracking orders. The DynamoDB table is partitioned based on the order date. The company receives a huge increase in orders during a sales event, causing DynamoDB writes to throttle, and the consumed throughput is far below the provisioned throughput.

According to AWS best practices, how can this issue be resolved with MINIMAL costs?

- A. Create a new DynamoDB table for every order date.
- B. Add a global secondary index to the DynamoDB table.
- C. Add a random number suffix to the partition key values.
- D. Increase the read and write capacity units of the DynamoDB table.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 128

A Developer must encrypt a 100-GB object using AWS KMS.

What is the BEST approach?

- A. Make an Encrypt API call to encrypt the plaintext data as ciphertext using a customer master key (CMK)
- B. Make a GenerateDataKeyWithoutPlaintext API call that returns an encrypted copy of a data key.
Use an encrypted key to encrypt the data
- C. Make a GenerateDataKey API call that returns a plaintext key and an encrypted copy of a data key.
Use a plaintext key to encrypt the data
- D. Make an Encrypt API call to encrypt the plaintext data as ciphertext using a customer master key (CMK) with imported key material

Answer: C

Explanation:

As you cannot encrypt data with an encrypted copy of data key, you need to decrypt it first and then use the plain text data key to encrypt the data.

NEW QUESTION # 129

A company has a website that displays a daily newsletter. When a user visits the website, an AWS Lambda function processes the browser's request and queries the company's on-premises database to obtain the current newsletter. The newsletters are stored in English. The Lambda function uses the Amazon Translate TranslateText API operation to translate the newsletters, and the translation is displayed to the user.

Due to an increase in popularity, the website's response time has slowed. The database is overloaded. The company cannot change the database and needs a solution that improves the response time of the Lambda function.

Which solution meets these requirements?

- A. Change to asynchronous Lambda function invocation.

- B. Cache the translated newsletters in the Lambda /tmp directory.
- C. Change the Lambda function to use parallel processing.
- D. Enable TranslateText API caching.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 130

An Amazon DynamoDB table uses a Global Secondary Index (GSI) to support read queries. The primary table is write-heavy, whereas the GSI is used for read operations. Looking at Amazon CloudWatch metrics, the Developer notices that write operations to the primary table are throttled frequently under heavy write activity. However, write capacity units to the primary table are available and not fully consumed.

Why is the table being throttled?

- A. The GSI write capacity units are underprovisioned
- B. A large write operation is being performed against another table
- C. Amazon DynamoDB Streams is not enabled on the table
- D. There are not enough read capacity units on the primary table

Answer: B
