NEW QUESTION # 54

Which of the following statements about the benefits of the Agile processes promoting early and frequent feedback is NOT true?

- A. Early and frequent feedback enables the team to deliver the features that represent the highest business value to the customer first.
- B. Feedback from well-conducted Agile retrospectives can be used to positively affect the development process over the course of the next iteration.
- C. In Agile projects where feedback is provided early and frequently, defects and incorrect requirements are caught earlier and those problems can be fixed faster.
- D. Increasing the frequency of feedback and communication between all the stakeholders involved in Agile projects eliminates all communication problems.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Agile processes promote early and frequent feedback from the customers, users, testers, developers, and other stakeholders involved in the project. This feedback helps to ensure that the product meets the expectations and needs of the customers and users, and that the development process is continuously improved and adapted to the changing requirements and environment. However, increasing the frequency of feedback and communication does not eliminate all communication problems, as there may still be issues such as misunderstandings, misinterpretations, conflicts, or cultural differences that need to be resolved. Therefore, the statement D is not true, as it implies that communication problems are completely avoided by the Agile processes. #### NEW QUESTION # 56

Which of the following is a risk that continuous integration introduces?

- A. Testers sometimes have too many builds to test, which reduces the quality of testing
- B. Teams no longer have the ability to run manual tests, as all tests must be automated.
- C. Developer's workload is increased, which can result in a reduction of output.
- D. Teams sometimes over-rely on unit tests and exclude some important system and acceptance tests.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Continuous integration is a practice of integrating code changes frequently and automatically into a shared repository, and running automated tests to verify the integration. Continuous integration can introduce some risks to the testing process, such as:

- * Testers sometimes have too many builds to test, which reduces the quality of testing. This can happen when the code changes are too frequent or too large, and the testers do not have enough time or resources to test each build thoroughly. This can lead to missed defects, incomplete test coverage, and reduced confidence in the product quality.
- * Testers sometimes have to deal with unstable or broken builds, which affects the testability of the product. This can happen when the code changes introduce errors or conflicts that cause the build to fail or malfunction. This can waste the testers' time and effort, and delay the feedback cycle.
- * Testers sometimes have to cope with changing requirements and priorities, which affects the test planning and execution. This can happen when the stakeholders or customers provide new or modified requirements or feedback during the development cycle. This can require the testers to adapt their test strategy, test cases, and test data accordingly, and to balance the testing of new features and regression testing of existing features.
