Adobe Real-Time CDP Business Practitioner Professional Sample Questions (Q26-Q31):

NEW QUESTION # 26

A travel company uses Adobe RT-CDP to deliver personalized recommendations based on real-time browsing behavior. Which profile should they leverage for low-latency personalization?

- A. Static batch profile.
- B. Hub profile with central processing.
- C. Cloud-based profile for probabilistic matching.
- D. Edge profile stored locally.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 27

Which part of Adobe Real-Time CDP is responsible for housing customer information collected from multiple sources?

- A. Experience Data Model (XDM) System
- B. Real-Time Customer Profile
- C. Identity service
- D. Graph Database

Answer: B

Explanation:

While several components of the Adobe Experience Platform work together, the Real-Time Customer Profile is the specific functional component responsible for housing and serving the consolidated customer information. It acts as the centralized "hub" where data attributes (from the Individual Profile class) and behavioral events (from the ExperienceEvent class) are aggregated. The Real-Time Customer Profile is not a traditional database but a highly optimized NoSQL data store designed for sub-second retrieval. It stores the "Active Profile," which is the result of the merging and stitching processes. This allows other services, such as the Segmentation Service and Activation destinations, to access a complete and up-to-date representation of any customer instantly. Option A, the Graph Database, is used specifically by the Identity Service (Option C) to manage the relationships between different identity namespaces (like linking an Email to a Cookie ID), but it does not store the full profile attributes like name or purchase history. Option D, the XDM System, is the formal language and structure (the "blueprint") that defines how data is modeled, but it is not the storage layer itself.

Therefore, the Real-Time Customer Profile is the correct entity that houses the actual unified customer data.

NEW QUESTION # 28

After creating the Entity Relationship Diagram (ERD) of the data sources that will be connected into an Adobe Experience Platform (AEP) implementation for a utility company, the service details (including information such as name, cost, type, and category) appear multiple times across different entities (for example, in the transactional events and in the customer profile details).

When designing the XDM data model for that ERD, the data architect and the business stakeholders validate that the service details information must be included at both levels, record, and time series. The service details will be used multiple times within the same structure. In what two ways should the service details be defined in the AEP data model to make it consistent and re-usable? (Choose two.)

- A. Create a Schema
- B. Create a Class
- C. Create a Field Group (cross-class)
- D. Create a Data Type

Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION # 29

What is a key difference between static and dynamic segments?

- A. Static segments are used for batch processing, while dynamic segments cannot be activated.
- B. Static segments support real-time updates, while dynamic segments do not.
- C. Dynamic segments only work with structured data.
- D. Dynamic segments automatically update based on real-time data, while static segments remain fixed.

NEW QUESTION # 30

A gaming company wants to send user's gaming event data from the console to Adobe Experience Platform through Adobe Experience Platform Server API and Edge Network for serving personalized experiences at a later stage. In the Server API call what is the right endpoint to use to send the data to Adobe Experience Platform after the company configures the necessary Schema, Dataset and Datastream?

- A. POST https://server.adobedc.net/ee/v2/interact?datasetId={DATASET\_ID}
- B. POST <https://server.adobedc.net/ee/v2/interact?sand={sandbox}>
- C. POST https://server.adobedc.net/ee/v2/interact?schemaId={SCHEMA\_ID}
- D. POST https://server.adobedc.net/ee/v2/interact?configId={DATASTREAM\_ID}

Answer: D

Explanation:

When utilizing the Adobe Experience Platform Server-Side API to communicate with the Edge Network, the most critical parameter is the Datastream ID (internally referred to in the API as configId). The Datastream acts as the central router on the Edge Network; it identifies which Experience Platform sandbox, dataset, and schema the incoming data should be mapped to, as well as which other Adobe solutions (like Target or Analytics) should receive the data.

The correct endpoint structure is POST https://server.adobedc.net/ee/v2/interact?configId={DATASTREAM\_ID}. Options A and B are incorrect because the Edge Network does not accept raw data targeted directly at a Dataset or Schema ID; those mappings are handled server-side within the Datastream configuration to simplify the client-side (or console-side) implementation. Option D is incorrect because while a sandbox name might be part of a header or organizational context, it is not the primary routing parameter for the Edge Network interaction. By targeting the configId, the gaming company ensures that their event data is correctly processed by the Edge Network Service, allowing for real-time profile enrichment and future personalization.
