NEW QUESTION # 25

Which of the following commands will set the $FOO environment variable within a script, so that it may be used in subsequent workflow job steps?

- A. `run: echo "FOO=bar" >> $GITHUB_ENV`
- B. `run: echo "::set-env name=FOO::bar"`
- C. `run: export FOO=bar`
- D. `run: echo ${{ $FOO=bar }}`

Answer: A

Explanation:

The $GITHUB_ENV environment variable is used to set environment variables that persist across steps in a workflow job. By echoing FOO=bar into $GITHUB_ENV, the variable FOO will be available in subsequent steps within the same job.

Variables set in `GITHUB_ENV` apply only to the current job.

Example:

```
echo "PR_NUMBER=$pr_number" >> $GITHUB_ENV
```

- B. The `GITHUB_WORKSPACE` environment variable should be used to access files from within the runner.
- C. The environment variables can be read in workflows using the `ENV: variable_name` syntax.
- D. The environment variables created should be prefixed with `GITHUB_` to ensure they can be accessed in workflows

- C.

    value: Some value
```
- D.

```

    value: Some value
```

Answer: D
