NEW QUESTION # 90
A Visualforce page has a standard controller for an object that has a lookup relationship to a parent object.
How can a developer display data from the parent record on the page?

- A. By using merge field syntax to retrieve data from the parent record.
- B. By adding a second standard controller to the page for the parent record.
- C. By using a roll-up formula field on the child record to include data from the parent record.
- D. By using SOQL on the Visualforce page to query for data from the parent record.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 91
Universal Containers wants to ensure that all new leads created in the system have a valid email address. They have already created a validation rule to enforce this requirement, but want to add an additional layer of validation using automation.
What would be the best solution for this requirement?

- A. Use a before-save Apex trigger on the Lead object to validate the email address and display an error message if it is invalid
- B. Use a custom Lightning Web component to make a callout to validate the fields on a third party system.
- C. Use an Approval Process to enforce the completion of a valid email address using an outbound message action,
- D. Submit a REST API Callout with a JSON payload and validate the fields on a third party system

Answer: B

Explanation:
To add an additional layer of validation for email addresses on Lead records by using automation and possibly an external validation service, the best solution is to use a custom Lightning Web Component (LWC).
Option C: Use a custom Lightning Web Component to make a callout to validate the fields on a third-party system Real-Time Validation: An LWC can perform client-side validation and make callouts to external systems to validate the email address as the user inputs data.
User Experience: Provides immediate feedback to the user, improving data quality at the point of entry.
Limitations: This solution works when data is entered through the UI using the LWC component.

Lightning Web Components
Making Callouts from Lightning Components
Why Other Options are Less Optimal or Incorrect:
Option A: Use an Approval Process to enforce the completion of a valid email address using an outbound message action Not Suitable: Approval Processes are not intended for data validation.
Outbound Messages: Used to send data to external systems but do not enforce validation during record creation.
Option B: Submit a REST API Callout with a JSON payload and validate the fields on a third-party system Vague Implementation: Does not specify where or how the callout is made.
Technical Constraints: Making synchronous callouts during record save (e.g., from a trigger) is not permitted.
Option D: Use a before-save Apex trigger on the Lead object to validate the email address and display an error message if it is invalid Callout Limitations: Apex triggers cannot make callouts in a before-save context.
Asynchronous Callouts: Using asynchronous methods (e.g., @future) cannot prevent the record from being saved.

Future Methods
Conclusion:
Using a custom Lightning Web Component is the best solution to add an additional layer of validation during data entry.
It allows for real-time validation via callouts to a third-party system.
While it doesn't cover records created via other means (API, data import), the existing validation rule would still enforce that an email address is provided.
