CompTIA Security+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q202-Q207):

NEW QUESTION # 202
Which of the following practices would be best to prevent an insider from introducing malicious code into a company's development process?

- A. Code scanning for vulnerabilities
- B. Quality assurance testing
- C. Open-source component usage
- D. Peer review and approval

Answer: D

Explanation:
Peer review and approval is a practice that involves having other developers or experts review the code before it is deployed or released. Peer review and approval can help detect and prevent malicious code, errors, bugs, vulnerabilities, and poor quality in the development process. Peer review and approval can also enforce coding standards, best practices, and compliance requirements. Peer review and approval can be done manually or with the help of tools, such as code analysis, code review, and code signing. NEW QUESTION # 203
Which of the following is a benefit of an RTO when conducting a business impact analysis?

- A. It determines the likelihood of an incident and its cost.
- B. It determines the state that systems should be restored to following an incident.
- C. It determines how long an organization can tolerate downtime after an incident.
- D. It determines the roles and responsibilities for incident responders.

Answer: C

Explanation:
Recovery Time Objective (RTO) defines the maximum acceptable downtime before business operations must be restored. It helps organizations set expectations for recovery speed and prioritize system restoration accordingly.
A (likelihood of an incident and cost) relates to risk assessment, not RTO.
B (roles and responsibilities) falls under incident response planning, not RTO.
C (state of restored systems) is covered by Recovery Point Objective (RPO), not RTO.

NEW QUESTION # 204
Which of the following can a security director use to prioritize vulnerability patching within a company's IT environment?

- A. CVSS
- B. SIEM
- C. SOAR
- D. CVE

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 205
A company's legal department drafted sensitive documents in a SaaS application and wants to ensure the documents cannot be accessed by individuals in high-risk countries. Which of the following is the most effective way to limit this access?

- A. Geolocation policy
- B. Data masking
- C. Encryption
- D. Data sovereignty regulation

Answer: A

Explanation:
A geolocation policy is a policy that restricts or allows access to data or resources based on the geographic location of the user or device. A geolocation policy can be implemented using various methods, such as IP address filtering, GPS tracking, or geofencing. A geolocation policy can help the company's legal department to prevent unauthorized access to sensitive documents from individuals in high-risk countries.

NEW QUESTION # 206
Which of the following is the most likely to be used to document risks, responsible parties, and thresholds?

- A. Risk transfer
- B. Risk tolerance
- C. Risk register
- D. Risk analysis

Answer: C

Explanation:
A risk register is a document that records and tracks the risks associated with a project, system, or organization. A risk register typically includes information such as the risk description, the risk owner, the risk probability, the risk impact, the risk level, the risk response strategy, and the risk status. A risk register can help identify, assess, prioritize, monitor, and control risks, as well as communicate them to relevant stakeholders. A risk register can also help document the risk tolerance and thresholds of an organization, which are the acceptable levels of risk exposure and the criteria for escalating or mitigating risks.
