Saviynt Certified Advanced IGA Professional (Level 200) Sample Questions (Q30-Q35):

NEW QUESTION # 30

An EIC Administrator has a requirement to execute provisioning as soon as the user import is completed, what type of job can be configured to achieve this?

- A. WSRetry job
- B. Single Threaded Job
- C. Multi threading job
- D. Trigger chain job

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC, job orchestration and sequencing are critical for automating identity lifecycle processes such as user import followed by provisioning. To ensure that provisioning starts immediately after user import completes, Saviynt provides the concept of a Trigger Chain Job.

A Trigger Chain Job (Option B) allows administrators to define a sequence of jobs where one job is automatically triggered upon the successful completion of another. In this scenario, once the User Import Job finishes, the system can automatically trigger the Provisioning Job, ensuring seamless and immediate execution without manual intervention or time delays.

Option A (Multi-threading job) relates to performance optimization, not sequencing. Option C (Single Threaded Job) defines execution style but does not control job dependency. Option D (WSRetry job) is used for retrying failed web service calls, not for chaining processes.

Thus, Trigger Chain Jobs are the correct approach for automating dependent job execution and are widely used in Saviynt for efficient workflow orchestration.

NEW QUESTION # 31

Which of the following EIC modules support configuration of active workflow? (Choose 3 options)

- A. Security System
- B. Entitlement Type
- C. Endpoint
- D. Global Configuration

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC, workflows are a core component used to control approval processes for access requests, provisioning, and other identity lifecycle events. These workflows can be configured at multiple levels depending on the scope and granularity required.

Security System (A) supports workflow configuration to define approval processes at the application level.

This allows organizations to enforce consistent approval logic for all endpoints associated with that system.

Endpoint (B) also supports workflow configuration, enabling more granular control where different endpoints within the same security system may require distinct approval processes. This is particularly useful in complex environments with varied access control requirements.

Entitlement Type (D) supports workflows to manage approvals specific to entitlement categories (such as roles, groups, or permissions), ensuring appropriate governance at a finer level.

Global Configuration (C), while important for system-wide settings, is not typically used to directly assign active workflows to access requests. Instead, workflows are selected and applied within modules like Security System, Endpoint, and Entitlement Type.

Thus, the correct modules supporting active workflow configuration are Security System, Endpoint, and Entitlement Type.

NEW QUESTION # 32

In REST connector, under which JSON do you specify the provisioning limit and connection timeout settings?

- A. MODIFYUSERDATAJSON
- B. ConfigJSON
- C. StatusthresholdConfig
- D. ConnectionJSON

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC REST connector configuration, ConnectionJSON is the central configuration block where all connection-level properties are defined. This includes not only the base URL, authentication details, and headers, but also critical operational parameters such as connection timeout settings and provisioning limits (such as throttling or API limits).

Provisioning activities like account creation, update, and deletion rely on stable connectivity to the target system. Therefore, timeout configurations (for example, connection timeout and read timeout) are defined in ConnectionJSON to ensure that API calls do not hang indefinitely and can fail gracefully if the target system is unresponsive. Similarly, provisioning limits—such as maximum records processed or API throttling controls—are configured at this level to manage performance and avoid overloading external systems.

Option A (ConfigJSON) is not a standard JSON used in REST connector configurations. Option B (MODIFYUSERDATAJSON) is used specifically for user update operations. Option D (StatusthresholdConfig) relates to job/status handling rather than connection parameters.

Thus, ConnectionJSON is the correct place for configuring provisioning limits and timeout settings in Saviynt REST connectors.

NEW QUESTION # 33

What is the use of the Show XML option in a workflow?

- A. It allows users to create new JSON wirings from scratch
- B. It enables users to open and view the Workflow XML script in a read-only mode
- C. It provides the ability to edit the Workflow XML script
- D. It shows the Workflow version history

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC, workflows are internally represented in XML format, which defines the sequence of approval steps, conditions, and actions. The "Show XML" option is specifically designed to allow administrators to view the underlying XML structure of a workflow. However, this view is provided in a read-only mode, meaning administrators can inspect the configuration but cannot directly modify it from this option.

This feature is particularly useful for debugging, auditing, and understanding workflow logic, especially in complex approval processes involving multiple steps and conditions. It helps administrators verify how a workflow is constructed without risking accidental changes to the configuration.

Option C is incorrect because editing workflow XML is not typically done directly through the "Show XML" view in Saviynt UI; modifications are handled through workflow configuration screens or controlled import/export processes. Option A is unrelated since Saviynt workflows are XML-based, not JSON-based. Option B is also incorrect because version history is managed separately and not through the Show XML option.

Thus, the correct purpose of "Show XML" is to view workflow configuration safely in read-only format.

NEW QUESTION # 34

In EIC Duplicate Identity Management, what are the different filter options available in Global Configurations? (Multi-Select)

- A. Fine Matching
- B. Identity Matching
- C. Coarse Matching
- D. Merger Query

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

In Saviynt EIC's Duplicate Identity Management (DIM), Global Configurations provide filtering mechanisms to identify potential duplicate identities efficiently. The two primary matching strategies used are Coarse Matching and Fine Matching, which together form the backbone of duplicate detection logic.

Coarse Matching (A) is used as an initial filtering mechanism. It applies broader criteria such as matching on common attributes like first name, last name, or email domain to quickly identify a pool of potential duplicate identities. This helps in reducing the dataset size before applying more detailed checks.

Fine Matching (C) is a more refined and precise comparison that evaluates stricter conditions such as exact matches on email ID, employee ID, or other unique identifiers. This step ensures higher accuracy in identifying true duplicates from the coarse match results.

Option B (Identity Matching) is not a standard configurable filter in DIM Global Configuration, and Option D (Merger Query) relates to post-identification actions rather than filtering criteria.

Thus, the correct answers are Coarse Matching and Fine Matching, which together enable effective duplicate identity detection.
