Examine the description of the PRODUCT_ DETAILS table:

Which two statements are true?

- A. EXPIRY_ DATE contains the SYSDATE by default if no date is assigned to it.
- B. PRODUCT_ PRICE can be used in an arithmetic expression even if it has no value stored in it.
- C. PRODUCT_ PRICE contains the value zero by default if no value is assigned to it.
- D. EXPIRY_ DATE cannot be used in arithmetic expressions.
- E. PRODUCT_ ID can be assigned the PRIMARY KEY constraint.
- F. PRODUCT_ NAME cannot contain duplicate values.

Answer: D,E

Explanation:
In reference to the attributes of the PRODUCT_DETAILS table:
A). This statement is false. If PRODUCT_PRICE has no value (i.e., it is NULL), it cannot be used directly in arithmetic expressions because any operation with NULL results in NULL.
B). This statement is true. PRODUCT_ID has the NOT NULL constraint and is of type NUMBER, making it eligible to be a PRIMARY KEY. Primary keys require all values to be unique and not null.
C). This statement is true. EXPIRY_DATE is of type DATE, and it cannot be used in arithmetic expressions directly without a date function that operates on dates.
D). This statement is false. By default, columns of type DATE do not have a default value unless explicitly assigned using the DEFAULT keyword in the column definition.
E). This statement is false. By default, numeric columns do not have a default value unless specified with the DEFAULT keyword.
F). This statement is false. The statement about PRODUCT_NAME not containing duplicate values would be true if it were a UNIQUE or PRIMARY KEY, but there is no such constraint indicated in the provided table description.
