IBM watsonx Generative AI Engineer - Associate Sample Questions (Q129-Q134):

NEW QUESTION # 129

You are working with a Watsonx Generative AI model to create marketing content that balances creativity with efficiency. The goal is to generate engaging content within a predefined time limit without compromising on quality.

Given this context, which two optimization strategies will most effectively help you achieve both speed and content quality? (Select two)

- A. Reduce the batch size to decrease training time and speed up generation.
- B. Use beam search with a beam width of 1 to minimize computation time.
- C. Increase the model's learning rate to accelerate content generation.
- D. Apply top-k sampling with k = 50 to ensure diverse and creative outputs.
- E. Implement early stopping criteria based on token repetition to avoid lengthy generation.

Answer: D,E

NEW QUESTION # 130

You are working on generating synthetic training data using IBM InstructLab to supplement a small dataset for a question-answering system.

Which strategy would most effectively enhance the dataset without introducing biases or artifacts?

- A. Manually tweak each generated response to ensure it's free of errors and aligns with the intended task.
- B. Generate a large amount of synthetic data by directly feeding the model with random prompts, ensuring data diversity.
- C. Use prompts that closely mimic the structure and semantics of the real dataset's questions to maintain consistency.
- D. Automatically generate synthetic data using a different model architecture than the one being fine-tuned.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 131

You are optimizing a Generative AI model for a business application where cost savings are a priority.

Which of the following modifications to the model's parameters will most effectively reduce the overall generation cost while minimizing the loss of output quality?

- A. Decrease the model's context window size.
- B. Reduce the number of layers in the neural network during inference.
- C. Set a lower value for the frequency penalty parameter.
- D. Set a lower value for the top-p (nucleus sampling) parameter.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 132

You are tasked with inspecting and validating a dataset using IBM Watson's Data Refinery tool. The dataset will be used for an AI application that performs natural language processing (NLP) on customer support tickets. Upon inspection, you discover that the 'ticket_description' field contains numerous instances of null values and inconsistent formats.

What is the most appropriate action to take next using Data Refinery?

- A. Use Data Refinery's "Data Quality" feature to generate a profiling report and assess the scope of the issues.
- B. Proceed with training the model without any changes, as missing data will not impact NLP models significantly.
- C. Replace all null values with zeros, as this will standardize the dataset.
- D. Delete all rows containing null values in the 'ticket_description' field.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 133

You are working with IBM Watsonx to generate automated customer support responses. To ensure consistency and flexibility in responses across multiple product categories, you decide to use prompt variables.

Which of the following best describes the benefits of using prompt variables in this scenario?

- A. They automatically improve the accuracy of the AI's responses by allowing the system to learn from each generated prompt.
- B. They ensure that the AI generates responses with consistent tone and personality across all prompts, regardless of product category.

- C. They allow for dynamic input fields in prompts, making it easier to tailor responses for different product categories without rewriting the entire prompt.
- D. They enable the AI to better predict the intent of the customer query, reducing the need for explicit customer input.

Answer: C
