NEW QUESTION # 80

- A. In the vCenter Cloud configuration.
- B. In the "Service Engine Profile" or "Flavor" settings within the Service Engine Group configuration.

NEW QUESTION # 81

An operator needs to configure a second Virtual Service that reuses an existing Virtual Service IP on a separate service port. How is this handled in the Create Virtual Service configuration?

- A. In the Advanced Setup Wizard, create the second Virtual Service as a Child Virtual Service
- B. In the Advanced Setup Wizard, create the second Virtual Service without Auto Allocate, and then type in the existing VS IP
- C. In the Advanced Setup Wizard, create the second Virtual Service and select an existing VS VIP
- D. In the Basic Setup Wizard, create the second Virtual Service without Auto Allocate, and then type in the existing VS IP

Answer: C

Explanation:

Avi Load Balancer supports sharing a single VIP across multiple Virtual Services when each Virtual Service uses a different service port. This is useful when multiple applications or protocols must use the same IP address but separate listener ports, profiles, pools, and policies. Broadcom documentation for sharing a single VIP across multiple Virtual Services describes selecting an existing VS VIP while creating another Virtual Service. This avoids manually typing the same IP address as a separate allocation, which could create duplicate or inconsistent VIP configuration. Creating a child Virtual Service is used for other use cases, such as SNI or parent-child designs, not simply reusing the same VIP on a different port. Therefore, the correct method is to use Advanced Setup and select the existing VS VIP.
