Salesforce Certified Slack Developer Sample Questions (Q188-Q193):

NEW QUESTION # 188

Your Slack app involves transmitting sensitive information.

What is the most secure method to communicate this data within the Slack environment?

- A. Use direct messages for sensitive information, assuming they are always secure
- B. Share sensitive information openly in public channels but only during non-peak hours
- C. Employ Slack's built-in security features for encryption and use private channels or direct messages as needed
- D. Encrypt the data using a custom algorithm and send it through public channels

Answer: C

Explanation:

Employ Slack's built-in security features for encryption and use private channels or direct messages as needed Using Slack's built-in security features for encryption and transmitting sensitive information through private channels or direct messages (when necessary) is the most secure approach. This method leverages Slack's own security protocols while ensuring that sensitive data is shared in a more controlled and secure environment.

Why not the other options:

*Using a custom encryption algorithm and sending data through public channels does not guarantee security, as public channels are accessible by all members of the workspace.

*Assuming direct messages are always secure can be risky; sensitive information should still be handled with caution and encryption.

*Sharing sensitive information in public channels, regardless of the time, is not a secure practice and exposes the data to potential unauthorized access.

NEW QUESTION # 189

In the OAuth installation flow for a Slack app, how should you securely redirect users after they have authorized your app?

- A. Redirect users to a secure HTTPS page on your website that does not expose the access token
- B. Redirect users to a non-HTTPS page on your website with a thank you message
- C. Send users an email with a link to complete the installation process
- D. Redirect users back to Slack with the access token appended to the URL

Answer: A

Explanation:

Redirect users to a secure HTTPS page on your website that does not expose the access token Redirecting users to a secure HTTPS page on your website without exposing the access token in the URL is the best practice. This ensures that the token remains confidential and reduces the risk of token interception.

Why not the other options:

*A non-HTTPS page is not secure, and sensitive information could be intercepted.

*Appending the access token to the URL can expose it to unauthorized parties.

*Sending an installation completion link via email can be insecure and is not a standard practice in OAuth flows.

NEW QUESTION # 190

When designing a Slack app that interacts with external services, what is a key security consideration?

- A. Regularly change the app's API token and share it with all users
- B. Use simple authentication methods for ease of user access
- C. Implement OAuth for secure authentication and authorization
- D. Disable SSL/TLS to increase the speed of data transfer

Answer: C

Explanation:

Implement OAuth for secure authentication and authorization Implementing OAuth is a key security consideration for Slack apps interacting with external services. OAuth provides a secure and standardized way for authentication and authorization, ensuring that user data is protected and access is controlled properly.

Why not the other options:

*Using simple authentication methods can compromise security..

*Regularly changing the API token and sharing it with users can lead to security risks and mismanagement.

*Disabling SSL/TLS compromises data security in transit, making it vulnerable to interception and attacks.

NEW QUESTION # 191

When should a workspace administrator consider using the Slack Admin API?

- A. For creating custom Slack emojis and GIFs accessible to all users in the workspace
- B. For integrating Slack with external non-workspace-related databases and services
- C. When setting up a system to automate channel creation and manage app installations across multiple workspaces in an organization
- D. To develop an internal communication strategy that includes creating and managing content within Slack channels

Answer: C

Explanation:

When setting up a system to automate channel creation and manage app installations across multiple workspaces in an organization The Admin API is ideal for automating and managing tasks like channel creation and app installations across multiple workspaces. It allows administrators to efficiently control and standardize these aspects of workspace management, ensuring consistency and adherence to organizational policies.

Why not the other options:

*The creation of custom emojis and GIFs is not a function of the Admin API.

*The Admin API is not focused on internal communication strategies or content management within channels.

*The Admin API is specifically for Slack workspace administration and not for integrating with external databases or services unrelated to workspace management.

NEW QUESTION # 192

In the context of an Enterprise Grid in Slack, what role is required to generate a token for using APIs to automate organizational-wide administration?

- A. Any user within the organization's Slack Grid
- B. Individual workspace admins within the Grid
- C. External IT support personnel with limited Slack access
- D. Users with the Enterprise Grid Admin role

Answer: D

Explanation:

Users with the Enterprise Grid Admin role For organizational-wide administration in an Enterprise Grid, generating a token for using APIs typically requires a user to have the Enterprise Grid Admin role. This role is equipped with the necessary permissions to handle administrative tasks and API integrations across the entire Grid.

Why not the other options:

*Not all users within the organization will have the necessary permissions for this level of administrative control.

*Individual workspace admins might not have permissions for organization-wide tasks in the Enterprise Grid.

*External IT support personnel typically do not have the level of access required for generating such tokens.
