NEW QUESTION # 303

Which of the following statements depicts a valid role of the internal audit function in ensuring the effectiveness of management action plans?

- A. Internal audit supports the board in the design, implementation, and monitoring of effective management action plans
- B. Internal audit should not be involved in the design, implementation, or monitoring of management action plans in order to maintain independence and objectivity
- C. Internal audit designs the action plans and ensures that management implements them effectively
- D. Internal audit collaborates with management to evaluate whether the management action plans remediate audit observations effectively

Answer: D

Explanation:

Internal audit maintains independence by avoiding the design or implementation of management's corrective actions. However, the internal audit function has a valid role in evaluating and monitoring whether management's action plans effectively address audit observations. This ensures risks are mitigated while internal audit retains its assurance role.

Option A is too restrictive; while internal audit does not design or implement action plans, it does monitor and evaluate them. Options B and D inappropriately place responsibility for action plan design and monitoring with internal audit, which would compromise independence.
