CompTIA Security+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q340-Q345):

NEW QUESTION # 340
Which of the following practices would be best to prevent an insider from introducing malicious code into a company's development process?

- A. Quality assurance testing
- B. Peer review and approval
- C. Code scanning for vulnerabilities
- D. Open-source component usage

Answer: B

Explanation:
Peer review and approval is a practice that involves having other developers or experts review the code before it is deployed or released. Peer review and approval can help detect and prevent malicious code, errors, bugs, vulnerabilities, and poor quality in the development process. Peer review and approval can also enforce coding standards, best practices, and compliance requirements. Peer review and approval can be done manually or with the help of tools, such as code analysis, code review, and code signing. NEW QUESTION # 341

Which of the following security concepts is being followed when implementing a product that offers protection against DDoS attacks?

- A. Confidentiality
- B. Non-repudiation
- C. Availability
- D. Integrity

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 342

Which of the following should be used to prevent changes to system-level data?

- A. NIDS
- B. DLP
- C. FIM
- D. NAC

Answer: C

Explanation:
File Integrity Monitoring (FIM) is specifically designed to detect and prevent unauthorized changes to critical system files, configuration files, registry entries, binaries, and logs. According to CompTIA Security+ SY0-701, FIM creates a cryptographic baseline (usually via hashing) of protected system files. Any attempt to modify, add, or delete protected files immediately triggers an alert, enabling rapid detection of tampering- whether caused by malware, insider threats, or misconfigurations.
NIDS (A) monitors network traffic, not system-level modifications. DLP (B) prevents unauthorized data exfiltration, not system-file tampering. NAC (C) controls device access to the network but does not protect system files.
FIM is a core tool for ensuring system integrity in compliance frameworks such as PCI-DSS, which explicitly requires organizations to monitor critical system files. By preventing unauthorized changes to system-level data and alerting administrators to suspicious activity, FIM provides a strong defensive mechanism against malware, ransomware, and configuration drift.
Thus, FIM is the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 343

A user downloaded software from an online forum. After the user installed the software, the security team observed external network traffic connecting to the user's computer on an uncommon port. Which of the following is the most likely explanation of this unauthorized connection?

- A. The user's computer had a fileless virus.
- B. The software had a hidden keylogger.
- C. The software was ransomware.
- D. The software contained a backdoor.

Answer: D

Explanation:
The software contained a backdoor bypassing normal authentication method.

NEW QUESTION # 344

An administrator discovers a cross-site scripting vulnerability on a company website. Which of the following will most likely remediate the issue?

- A. WAF
- B. Vulnerability scan
- C. Input validation
- D. NGFW

Answer: C

Explanation:
Cross-site scripting (XSS) occurs when a web application fails to properly validate or sanitize user input, allowing attackers to inject malicious scripts into web pages viewed by other users. The most effective remediation is input validation, which ensures that only safe, expected data is accepted by the application.
Security+ SY0-701 highlights input validation as a primary defense against:
* XSS
* SQL injection
* Command injection
* Path traversal attacks
By validating and sanitizing input at both the client and server layers, organizations can strip harmful characters, block script tags, enforce strict data types, and ensure proper encoding.
A NGFW (B) or WAF (D) can mitigate attacks by blocking malicious payloads, but they do not fix the root cause within the web application. A vulnerability scan (C) identifies the issue but does not remediate it.
Therefore, only input validation (A) directly resolves the underlying coding flaw responsible for XSS.
