NEW QUESTION # 300

A systems administrator notices several VMs are constantly ballooning, while the memory usage of several other VMs is significantly lower than their resource allocation. Which of the following will MOST likely solve the issue?

- A. Bandwidth increase
- B. Right-sizing
- C. Cluster placement
- D. Storage tiers

Answer: B

Explanation:

Right-sizing is the process of allocating the correct amount of resources to a VM. In this case, the VMs that are constantly ballooning are being allocated too much memory. Right-sizing these VMs will reduce the amount of memory that they are allocated, which will prevent them from ballooning.

NEW QUESTION # 301

An administrator receives a ticket indicating the accounting application is not working. Which of the following should the administrator check FIRST?

- A. DHCP
- B. DNS
- C. Service-level agreement
- D. System logs

Answer: D

Explanation:

System logs are a record of events that occur on a system. They can be used to track down the cause of problems. In this case, the administrator should check the system logs for any errors or warnings that might be related to the accounting application.

NEW QUESTION # 302

A cloud developer is creating a static website that customers will be accessing globally. Which of the following services will help reduce latency?

- A. Application load balancer
- B. CDN
- C. VPC
- D. API gateway

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Content Delivery Network (CDN) is the service that will help reduce latency for a static website accessed globally. CDNs distribute content across multiple geographically dispersed servers, allowing users to connect to a server that is closer to them, thereby reducing the time it takes to load the website.

The use of CDNs is a common practice to enhance global access and improve user experience, as covered under Cloud Concepts in the CompTIA Cloud+ certification.

NEW QUESTION # 303

A cloud engineer is running a latency-sensitive workload that must be resilient and highly available across multiple regions. Which of the following concepts best addresses these requirements?

- A. Clustering
- B. Stand-alone container
- C. Hardware passthrough
- D. Cloning

Answer: A

Explanation:

Clustering refers to the use of multiple servers/computers to form what appears to be a single system. This concept is key for achieving high availability and resilience, especially for latency-sensitive workloads. By distributing the workload across a cluster that spans multiple regions, the system can continue to operate even if one or more nodes fail, thus maintaining performance and availability. should not be directly accessible via the internet. Which of the following options best describes how the software engineer can access the cloud resources?

- A. SSH
- B. Bastion host
- C. Web portal
- D. Token-based access

Answer: B

Explanation:

A bastion host is the best option described for accessing cloud resources without direct internet access. It acts as a secure gateway to access internal networks from external sources and is often used in conjunction with other security measures such as SSH for secure connections.
