NEW QUESTION # 74

When a Cloud Bigtable node fails, is lost.

- A. all data
- B. the time dimension
- C. no data
- D. the last transaction

Answer: C

Explanation:

A Cloud Bigtable table is sharded into blocks of contiguous rows, called tablets, to help balance the workload of queries. Tablets are stored on Colossus, Google's file system, in SSTable format. Each tablet is associated with a specific Cloud Bigtable node. Data is never stored in Cloud Bigtable nodes themselves; each node has pointers to a set of tablets that are stored on Colossus. As a result:

Rebalancing tablets from one node to another is very fast, because the actual data is not copied. Cloud Bigtable simply updates the pointers for each node.

Recovery from the failure of a Cloud Bigtable node is very fast, because only metadata needs to be migrated to the replacement node.

When a Cloud Bigtable node fails, no data is lost Reference: <https://cloud.google.com/bigtable/docs/overview>

- A. Install a third-party data validation tool on Compute Engine virtual machines to check the incoming data for sensitive information.
- B. Use Stackdriver logging to analyze the data passed through the total pipeline to identify transactions that may contain sensitive information.
- C. Build a Cloud Function that reads the topics and makes a call to the Cloud Data Loss Prevention AP
- D. Create an authorized view in BigQuery to restrict access to tables with sensitive data.
- E. Use the tagging and confidence levels to either pass or quarantine the data in a bucket for review.

Answer: D

- C. To give a user access to only one table in a project, grant the user the Bigtable Editor role for that table.
- D. To give a user access to only one table in a project, you must configure access through your application.
