Adobe Real-Time CDP Business Practitioner Professional Sample Questions (Q48-Q53):

NEW QUESTION # 48

A digital marketer wants to create an audience that allows personalization of the website in real time. Which method would the marketer need to consider to ensure real-time personalization is achieved effectively?

- A. Use Batch segmentation
- B. Use Streaming segmentation
- C. Use Edge segmentation

Answer: C

Explanation:

For website personalization that needs to happen "in-page" or between page loads with sub-second latency, Edge Segmentation is the required method. While Batch and Streaming segmentation occur in the AEP

"Hub," Edge segmentation is executed directly on the Adobe Experience Platform Edge Network. This is critical because it eliminates the "round-trip" time required to send data to the central data center and back to the user's browser.

Edge Segmentation allows the platform to evaluate segment membership at the point of interaction. When a user lands on a page, the Edge Network uses the Edge Profile (a subset of the full Hub profile) to immediately determine if the user qualifies for a segment based on their current session behavior and historical data. This enables immediate personalization, such as showing a "Welcome Back" banner the instant the user arrives.

Option A (Batch) is unsuitable for real-time needs as it runs every 24 hours. Option B (Streaming) is "near real-time," meaning it updates the Hub profile in seconds or minutes, but it is still too slow for an immediate web-response scenario where milliseconds matter. By using Edge Segmentation, the marketer ensures that the audience qualification is available at the "Edge," providing the fastest possible response time for Adobe Target or custom personalization engines.

NEW QUESTION # 49

How does the Adobe Real-Time CDP manage data when multiple records, coming from different sources but belonging to the same customer, are processed?

- A. It creates separate profiles for each of the received records
- B. It merges all records into a single, unified profile for the customer
- C. It only keeps the most frequent appearing record across all sources
- D. It assigns different importance weights to different sources and merges records based on these weights

Answer: B

Explanation:

The fundamental value proposition of Adobe Real-Time CDP is its ability to break down data silos by creating a 360-degree view of the customer. When the system ingests multiple records from different sources (such as a CRM system, an e-commerce platform, and web clickstream data) that share common identifiers, it uses the Identity Service to recognize they belong to the same person. The platform then dynamically merges these "profile fragments" into a single, unified Real-Time Customer Profile. This merging happens in real-time, ensuring that as soon as new data arrives, it is reflected in the unified view. This process allows for consistent personalization across channels; for example, a purchase made offline in a retail store can immediately suppress "buy now" ads for that same product on the website.

Option B is incorrect as it describes the very siloed state the CDP is designed to solve. Option C is incorrect because the platform preserves all relevant behavioral and attribute data rather than discarding records based on frequency. Option D is a slight misinterpretation of Merge Policies; while Merge Policies can prioritize one source over another for a specific attribute (Timestamp-ordered or Dataset-precedence), the platform still merges the records into a single profile rather than just weighing them.

NEW QUESTION # 50

What is a key difference between static and dynamic segments?

- A. Static segments support real-time updates, while dynamic segments do not.
- B. Dynamic segments automatically update based on real-time data, while static segments remain fixed.
- C. Dynamic segments only work with structured data.
- D. Static segments are used for batch processing, while dynamic segments cannot be activated.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 51

A data engineer is working on defining a data usage policy via automatic enforcement and has configured dataset labels C1 and C2 to enforce the restriction. The data engineer has set up the marketing actions, enabled the policy, and while activating audiences to destinations, realizes that the policy violations did not occur.

How can the data engineer ensure that the data policy is enforced successfully?

- A. Assign labels C1 and C2 to the schema rather than to the dataset during activation
- B. Include the labels C1 and C2 in the same audience upon activation
- C. Exclude the labels C1 and C2 from any audience upon activation
- D. Include the labels C1 and C2 in separate audiences upon activation

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 52

A data architect is asked to create an XDM Individual Profile class-based schema from the relational data model seen in the attached exhibit. From what the architect is told, the business has collected and stored the history of all home addresses (could be hundreds) used by a customer since the beginning. All addresses have a type of home but only a single address has the primary indicator flag set. The marketing team needs to be able to utilize this data for both audience/segment creation and in personalization. Given the above relational model, what is the best way to translate this into a single schema?

- A.
- B.
- C.

Answer: C
