NEW QUESTION # 73

A mobile app development company has implemented a new strategy in its software development process. Instead of large, infrequent updates, it now releases smaller updates every two weeks. These updates are shaped by regular user reviews and suggestions, which the company actively seeks and incorporates into each new version. Which guiding principle is this approach MOST closely aligned with?

- A. Progress iteratively with feedback
- B. Focus on value
- C. Optimize and automate
- D. Think and work holistically

Answer: A

Explanation:

This approach is most closely aligned with the guiding principle of progress iteratively with feedback (B).

The ITIL 4 Specialist: Create, Deliver and Support guide (Section 2.1.2) states: "Progress iteratively with feedback involves delivering work in smaller increments, using feedback from users to refine and improve services, ensuring alignment with needs and enhancing value stream efficiency." The two-week updates and user input exemplify this principle, contrasting with option A (holistic focus), option C (value focus without iteration), or option D (automation emphasis). The guide adds: "This principle supports rapid adaptation and quality improvement." Reference: ITIL 4 Specialist: Create, Deliver and Support, Section 2.1.2 - Guiding Principles.

What is the BEST way to manage this issue?

- A. Train users so that they know their requests might be delayed if there are many higher priority tasks in the backlog
- B. Use first-in first-out prioritization instead of triage, to ensure that tasks are worked on in the order that they are requested
- C. Increase the priority of requests that have been waiting a long time and are at risk of breaching agreed service levels
- D. Recruit more service desk staff so that they are able to work on low priority requests even when there are many higher priority tasks
