SailPoint Certified IdentityIQ Engineer Sample Questions (Q79-Q84):

NEW QUESTION # 79

Is the following statement true?

Solution: All ManagedAttribute objects associated to an Identity can be viewed on the 'Attributes' tab from 'View Identity' QuickLink.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Not all ManagedAttribute objects associated with an Identity are visible on the 'Attributes' tab within the 'View Identity' QuickLink. The 'Attributes' tab typically displays attributes that are specifically configured to be shown in the identity view, which might include certain managed attributes depending on how the system is configured. ManagedAttributes can represent various aspects like roles, entitlements, or even custom attributes, and their visibility on the UI depends on how the IdentityIQ instance is configured. To manage and configure visibility of attributes, consult the SailPoint IdentityIQ User Interface Customization Guide and Managed Attributes documentation.

<property name="extended1" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended1_ci"/>
<property name="extended2" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended2_ci"/>
<property name="extended3" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended3_ci"/>
<property name="extended4" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended4_ci"/>
<property name="extended5" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended5_ci"/>

<property name="extended6" type="string" length="450"

<property name="extended8" type="string" length="450"

<property name="extended9" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended9_ci"/>
<property name="extended10" type="string" length="450"
index="spt_identity_extended10_ci"/>

<property name="employeeId" type="string" length="450"
access="sailpoint.persistence.ExtendedPropertyAccessor"
index="spt_identity_employeeId_ci"/> <property name="status" type="string" length="450"
access="sailpoint.persistence.ExtendedPropertyAccessor"
index="spt_identity_status_ci"/>

<many-to-one name="extendedIdentity1" class="sailpoint.object.Identity"/>
<many-to-one name="extendedIdentity2" class="sailpoint.object.Identity"/>
<many-to-one name="extendedIdentity3" class="sailpoint.object.Identity"/>
<many-to-one name="extendedIdentity4" class="sailpoint.object.Identity"/>
<many-to-one name="extendedIdentity5" class="sailpoint.object.Identity"/>

Is this a correct statement about the installation?

Solution: There is a limitation in this installation: When defining the identity mappings using Global Settings > Identity Attributes, only 12 additional searchable attributes can be defined. Additional identity attributes and mappings can be defined, but they cannot be searchable.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: B

Explanation:

In SailPoint IdentityIQ, the configuration in IdentityExtended.hbm.xml file as shown in the image indeed outlines the use of extended identity attributes. These attributes (extended1, extended2, etc.) are custom attributes that are appended to the standard identity object model to store additional identity-related data.

According to the official SailPoint IdentityIQ documentation, when defining identity mappings under Global Settings > Identity Attributes, only up to 12 additional attributes can be made searchable within the IdentityIQ system. This limitation is crucial because it directly impacts the efficiency of search operations in large environments, where making too many attributes searchable can significantly slow down performance.

Once you define these 12 searchable attributes, any additional attributes can still be added, but they will not be indexed for search operations. This means that while the data in these attributes can be used in workflows, reports, and other operations, they cannot be used in search filters in the IdentityIQ user interface.

This limitation is particularly important when planning the design of the identity schema, as it affects both performance and usability. Therefore, the statement in question is correct and accurately reflects the constraints imposed by SailPoint IdentityIQ in terms of searchable identity attributes.

Reference:

This explanation is derived from the SailPoint IdentityIQ Configuration Guide and official documentation on identity attributes and their limitations. Specifically, this is covered in sections related to extended attributes and searchable properties within the system.

NEW QUESTION # 81

Is this statement true about identityIQ's syslog event storage?

Solution: IdentityIQ logging and auditing both require extra function calls within the application and will generate data that can be compressed to avoid any storage and Improve overall performance.

- A. No

- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

The statement is false. While it is true that logging and auditing require extra function calls and generate data, the suggestion that this data can be compressed to avoid storage issues and improve performance is misleading. In practice, while compression might save storage space, it does not inherently improve performance, particularly because the overhead of compression and decompression could negate the performance benefits. Effective performance management in IdentityIQ involves more nuanced approaches, such as optimizing the level of detail in logs, managing log rotation, and tuning the system for efficient I/O operations.

NEW QUESTION # 82

Is the following statement true?

Solution: All Application objects must have an Identity object as the owner.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 83

Is this a valid scenario that can be achieved in IdentityIQ by configuring the Quicklink populations?

Solution: Allow a user to create a new identity cube in IdentityIQ.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: A

Explanation:

Allowing a user to create a new identity cube in IdentityIQ is not a scenario that can be achieved through QuickLink populations. QuickLink populations are used to define which users have access to specific QuickLinks or tasks in the IdentityIQ interface. They do not control the creation of identity cubes, which is a function typically handled through the aggregation process, API calls, or specific administrative actions within the IdentityIQ platform. The creation of an identity cube involves data import and transformation processes, not just a UI-level permission.

Therefore, the correct answer is B. No.

Reference:

This answer is supported by the SailPoint IdentityIQ Administration Guide, which explains the roles and functions of QuickLink populations, highlighting their use for access control within the UI, but not for core operations like identity cube creation.
