NEW QUESTION # 190

What is the role of a pipeline in a data factory in the management of activities?

- A. There is no role of pipeline in the management of activities
- B. A pipeline allows the management of activities individually
- C. A pipeline allows the management of activities individually and as a set both
- D. A pipeline allows the management of activities as a set

Answer: D

Explanation:

A pipeline itself is a group of activities that performs a task altogether in an Azure data factory. It means pipeline allows the management of activities as a set, not individually. One can not deploy and schedule activities independently, but as a pipeline only. Option A is correct. A pipeline is a group of activities, grouped as per logic and performs a task altogether in a data factory. The pipeline allows the management of activities as a set.

Option B is incorrect. A pipeline is a group of activities and does not allow the management of activities individually.

Option C is incorrect. A pipeline allows the management of activities as a set only, not individually.

Option D is incorrect. A pipeline allows the management of activities as a set.
