What is 350-401 Exam

This Cisco Industrial Networking Specialist Certification exam evaluates a candidate's knowledge of the OSI layers of IP networks, as well as network devices like routers, switches, and cabling approaches; specific industrial devices, such as units, sensors, programmable logic controllers, and substation equipment; relevant industry standards and models such as the Purdue model, TIA, and environmental standards; and various important safety protocols. Scored in the same way as the Cisco CCENT/CCNA ICND1 100-105 exam, this certification is aimed at individuals who work in industrial environments.

Passed candidates should be willing to take on additional responsibilities, such as system administration. Cisco 350-401 Dumps is one of the most important exams for candidates who are interested in an entry-level position in the enterprise, thanks to its high salary potential. Professional experience is not required, however. 350-401 exam purpose: Candidates should plan to prepare for this exam by reviewing the "IP Telephony Fundamentals" section of the "Interconnecting Cisco Network Devices" book and by reviewing study guides and practice exams provided by the vendor of the test engine.
