NEW QUESTION # 104

APs in a remote office recently have been converted from local mode to FlexConnect to take advantage of the local switching. After the change, remote wireless users report voice quality issues and bad quality on wireless IP phones while roaming. A debug is performed, and it is noticed that the 802.11r Fast Transition is not working as expected, like on local mode AP, though the same WLAN configuration is in place. What is the cause of the issue regarding the FlexConnect APs?

- A. They must be added into AP groups along with a common RF profile.
- B. They must be in a FlexConnect group to support 802.11r FT.
- C. They must be added to AP groups to support fast roaming methods.
- D. They do not support 802.11r FT.

Answer: B

Explanation:

FlexConnect APs must be in a FlexConnect group to support 802.11r Fast Transition (FT). This grouping allows for local authentication and key management, which are necessary for fast roaming methods that improve voice quality and wireless IP phone performance during roaming.

NEW QUESTION # 105

When conducting a site survey for real-time traffic over wireless, which two design capabilities of smartphones and tablets must be considered? (Choose two.)

- A. higher data rates than laptops
- B. no support for 802.11r
- C. no support for 802.11ac
- D. lower data rates than laptops
- E. fewer antennas than laptops

Answer: D,E

Explanation:

Site surveys are one of the basic requirements when you deploy a WLAN, and you must always consider the Wi-Fi capabilities of the client devices or endpoints. Most smartphones and tablets support 802.11. However, generally, the smartphones and tablets have fewer antennas and lower data rates than laptops. In addition, most are not purpose-built for the enterprise WLAN market. Almost all smartphones and tablets support enterprise security policies. However, many of them do not support

NEW QUESTION # 106

A wireless engineer is hired to design a network for a technology company. The company campus has four buildings and a warehouse with access points that provide full wireless coverage as well as a pair of WLCs located in the core of the network. Which type of wireless architecture is being used?

- A. unified deployment
- B. autonomous deployment
- C. distributed deployment
- D. centralized deployment

Answer: D

Explanation:

The wireless architecture described is a centralized deployment. This is characterized by access points distributed across multiple buildings and managed centrally by Wireless LAN Controllers (WLCs). Centralized deployments are common in larger environments like a technology company campus because they allow for centralized management, scalability, and advanced features such as load balancing and fault tolerance.

NEW QUESTION # 107

Refer to the exhibit.

What is the main reason why the Wi-Fi design engineer took a different approach than installing the APs in the offices, even though that installation provides better coverage?
